Nazis Sink U.S. Ship, F.D.R. May Charge Piracy

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States State Department reported today 24 crew members, including one American, were "presumed lost" in the torpedoing of a former Danish ship, the Sessa, flying the Panamanian flag, August 17, about 300 miles southwest of Iceland.

News of the sinking, in which only three men aboard survived, came close on the heels of the sinking of the American freighter Steel Seafarer in Red Sea waters by an aerial bomb. British sources at Cairo blamed a German bomber based in Greece.

The Sessa's cargo consisted of foodstuffs, cereals, lumber and other general cargo and did not include arms, ammunition or implements of war.

Even before news of the Sessa's sinking was heard it was apparent the Steel Seafarer incident had intensified the crisis in relations between the United States and Germany on the issue of freedom of the seas.

The crew of the ship—some 20 odd men—escaped when she went down September 7, the State Department disclosed.

Bombing of the freighter, coming only 72 hours after the September 4 sea clash between the U.S.S. Greer and a German submarine in the north Atlantic, seemingly made a showdown inevitable with the Axis on the American interpretation of freedom of the seas.

The new attack, informed sources here asserted, might be found to constitute "piracy" as defined by President Roosevelt in his message to Congress denouncing Nazi tactics in torpedoing the American ship Robin Moor in the south Atlantic May 21.

On that occasion the President declared the Nazi U-boat involved "flagrantly violated the right of the United States vessels freely to navigate the seas subject only to a belligerent right accepted under international law."

Meanwhile the conviction grew in informed quarters here that President Roosevelt in his address Thursday night would announce that henceforth the policy of the United States would be to meet force with force on the high seas.

Although no one professed to know precisely what the President would say, one informant, asking anonymity, declared he thought it safe to predict the President would make these three points:

1. Germany and the world must know that the U.S. intends to keep open its communications with Iceland.

2. The appearance of any hostile vessel or aircraft in the area between United States and Iceland would be regarded as an effort to interfere with American communications.

3. American naval units would be ordered to open fire on any hostile ships or planes encountered thereafter in the waters between the U.S. and Iceland.

Final Bulletins

Ottawa Approved

OTTAWA (CP)—Formal approval of the use of Canadian Engineers in the expedition to Spitzbergen was given by the Canadian government but only a few high officials knew of the moment in advance and even yet officials are without detailed information on the operation.

MacGregor Promoted

OTTAWA (CP)—Maj. J. MacGregor, V.C., M.C., D.C.M., Victoria, is appointed second in command of a British Columbia regiment, it was announced in army orders today.

French Rescued

LONDON (CP)—A group of French officers and men, weary after months of aimless wandering following their escape from Nazi prison camps, were brought to Britain by the Canadian Spitzbergen expedition.

These Frenchmen were captured by the Nazi during the Flanders campaign of 1940, and they related terrifying experiences when they met the Canadians.

SIMPLE BURIAL

HYDE PARK, N.Y. (AP)—In the presence of a sorrowing President, her only son, Sara Delano Roosevelt was buried today.

The President sat in the car which had brought him from the family estate while the mahogany casket was lowered into the grave next to the resting place of his father, James, who died in 1900.

Dividing U.S. People

WASHINGTON (AP)—Wendell L. Willkie charged today, at the opening of a Senate committee inquiry into war propaganda, Senator Gerald Nye, Republican, North Dakota, was seeking to "divide the American people into discordant racial and religious groups, in order to disunite them over the United States foreign policy."

Garrison Left?

LONDON (CP)—A statement by Prime Minister Churchill today that "the Allied front now runs in an immense crescent from Spitzbergen in the Arctic Ocean to Tobruk in the western desert" was interpreted by some people to indicate the Allied expedition to the northern islands left a garrison there after destroying the coal workings.

Iran Accepts

TEHERAN (AP)—Iran today accepted Anglo-Russian peace terms, agreeing to expel German, Italian, Hungarian and Rumanian legations here and to deliver Axis nationals to British and Soviet authorities.

'ACOUSTIC' MINES

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today the Germans are using "acoustic" mines planted nightly by plane around Britain.

Mr. Churchill said 30 or 40 German planes sow mines in British waters nightly.

PLANS SOLO FLIGHT

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Vancouver woman flyer, Mrs. Desmond Barrett, the former Rolfe Moore, will make a solo trans-Canada flight in aid of the Chinese Red Cross in a campaign sponsored by Friends of China. Mrs. Barrett left here today by Trans-Canada Airlines for Hamilton, Ont., where she will pick up a plane at the factory and start her official tour from Toronto in mid-September.

Duke to Speak

QUEBEC (CP)—The Duke of Kent will make his official farewell to Canada tonight when he broadcasts to the Canadian people over a national network of the CBC at 10 p.m. E.D.T. (7 p.m. P.D.T.) for 15 minutes.

Diamond Shortage

A serious shortage of diamonds for jewelry purposes due to war conditions is predicted by local jewelers.

One jeweler said he did not think any small diamonds would be available in Victoria by Christmas or soon after.

One reason for the shortage is that most of the diamond cutting prior to the war was done in Holland and Germany. It is also reported that moneyed people, fearing inflation, have invested in precious stones.

Canadians Wreck Mines, Fire Spitzbergen Dumps

By ROSS MUNRO

LONDON (CP)—Royal Canadian Engineers wrecked the Spitzbergen coal mines, setting fire to vast coal and oil dumps.

The island's rich mining properties were damaged so badly they were rendered useless.

Five mining properties were put out of action, more than 400,000 tons of coal set afire and 125,000 gallons of fuel oil burned.

The ban against mention of the extent of the damage caused by the raid carried out by the Canadian force was lifted tonight by British authorities without explanation.

The expedition to the islands 500 miles north of Norway, in the Arctic, was led by Brig. Arthur E. Potts of Saskatoon. It included smaller British and Norwegian detachments. The Canadians included a detachment from Alberta, a regiment from Saskatchewan, a regiment of Royal Canadian Engineers, a field company from eastern Ontario, and signal and medical units.

After two years of patient waiting behind Britain's bristling ramparts, the hand-picked Canadian force seized the archipelago in a bloodless occupation, which deprived the Nazis of millions of dollars worth of fuel they had planned to use to feed their war machine.

MINERS BROUGHT BACK

The expedition returned to Britain with expert Norwegian miners and their families, who welcomed the troops of occupation and gave them valuable information.

Between 700 and 1,000 Norwegians normally live in Spitzbergen. All were evacuated so there would be no reprisals such as followed the Lofoten raids last March. No one was left behind.

The occupying force swept around Germany's northern flank in the spectacular offensive and struck with such speed and accuracy the Nazis were caught off guard.

MOST NORTHERLY

The only war correspondent covering the raids, I sailed 5,000 miles from Britain to Spitzbergen and back to witness this most northerly military operation of modern history.

Today this special force is the toast of the Canadian Corps. Some of the troops had twice before been disappointed when expeditions they were on to Norway and France last year either were canceled or recalled, but this time they went all the way, and finished the job.

The settlements were garrisoned and operation of the coal mines stopped immediately. Wireless and meteorological stations in communication with Norway and the Germans who dominated the island's economy were taken over.

SPECIALLY PICKED

Many of the specially-picked troops were trappers and hunters from the Canadian north and others were rugged farmers accustomed to the rigors of outdoor life in the cold Canadian winters.

Members of the staff which helped direct the dangerous occupation included Maj. Scott Murdoch of Vancouver, and Lieut. Bob Proctor of Edmonton. Maj. Bill Bury of Edmonton commanded the Alberta detachment with Capt. Dick Carter of Edmonton second in command.

The engineers were under Maj. Geoffrey Walsh of Oakville, Ont., whose second in command was Capt. J. C. Byrn of Vancouver. Capt. Peter Wilson led the signallers and the Saskatchewan detachment was under Capt. Bert Thompson and Capt. G. F. P. Bradbrooke, both of Saskatoon.

Maj. Archie Donald of Edmonton was officer commanding the troops aboard ship and the ship's adjutant was Capt. Len Dawes of Edmonton.

The medical unit was commanded by a lieutenant-colonel from Hamilton, Ont., and the other two doctors were Capt. J. E. Andrew of Charlottetown, P.E.I., and Capt. Don Young of Ottawa, a former McGill University football star.

Other officers included Capt. Perry Hall of Vancouver and Port Arthur, and Lieut. Des Barrett, Victoria. All these are engineers. (Lieut. Barrett is the younger son of Dr. and Mrs. W. T. Barrett, Beach Drive.)

Further officers included Lieuts. Bill Crompt and Ed Newton, both of Edmonton; Harry Smith of Medicine Hat, Alta., and Victoria, and Roy Couch of Lethbridge, Alta., all of the Alberta regiment; Lieut. Michael Webber of the Ottawa Signals and Lieuts. Winston Mair, North Battleford, and W. E. Walsh of Melfort, both of the Saskatchewan regiment.

Heavily armed detachments effected landings along the forbidding fjords. The first landing was made by Lieut. Webber and four other Ottawa signalmen. They went ashore over smooth waters in a rowboat from a destroyer and landed on a promontory. They took over a wireless station.

Three Canadians familiar with the Russian language were a great help in this settlement. They were Ptes. K. Sobkiw and H. Shatzko of Edmonton and Sapper George Wovk of Lethbridge, Alta., who acted as interpreters.

At the Norwegian settlement Lieut. Crompt led his Alberta men ashore. Among them was L.-Cpl. Jim Hamill of Vancouver.

Nazis Driven Back 16 Miles

Canadian and Associated Press

The Germans claimed today Leningrad and its population of 3,200,000 were hemmed in on all sides after some of the fiercest fighting in the war.

Moscow said the Soviet armies of the central front were pursuing the broken remnants of a German force of 100,000 men back westward toward Smolensk, having thrust the Nazis back 16 miles in two days and recaptured 150 square miles of territory and 50 villages in a gigantic continuing battle.

It was assumed in Berlin Leningrad's defenses were heavily manned, and the city is prepared to fight to the end.

Encirclement of the city was completed, the Nazi high command claimed, when Nazi speed troops reached the Neva River and captured the ancient fortress of Shliesselburg.

A Russian government communique said eight Nazi divisions were cut to pieces in a fierce counter-offensive which began 26 days ago and reached its climax with recapture of the railway town of Yelnya, 200 miles southwest of Moscow and 40 miles east of Smolensk.

Front-line reports to Pravda, the official Communist Party newspaper, gave an even more striking account of this greatest victory yet claimed by the Russians in nearly 12 weeks of war. The battlefields were carpeted with German corpses, Pravda said, and the Germans fell back in a retreat that has become a rout.

Hitler's New Order

Italy Only Weak Second

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER

BERLIN (AP)—After reading up on practically everything available concerning Germany's conception of the "New Order in Europe," I have concluded that the following constitutes part and parcel of it:

1. Germany would be the dominant power, with Italy running only a weak second. It is significant that in all German discussions of the new order Italy is hardly mentioned. According to the Suedost Echo of June 13,

RUSSIANS ON THE OFFENSIVE—This picture from Moscow seems to confirm German reports of heavy rains bogging down the blitz. Here attacking Soviet infantrymen ford a flooded river at the front, according to Russian caption.—Radiophoto.

Tens of thousands of unburied dead lay where they had fallen, and there were equal numbers of wounded who were carried westward by their comrades. Russian booty, not yet fully counted, or even collected as the hot pursuit continued, was said to include 102 big German cannon and all sorts of ammunition and smaller arms.

Red military observers expressed belief the success might relieve pressure on Leningrad, compelling the Nazis to withdraw some troops from that northern sector to save their sagging lines in the centre.

Announcement of the recapture of Yelnya constituted the first Russian acknowledgement, however, that German forces had succeeded in advancing to within 200 miles of Moscow.

ted to have any say whatever on the continent. Throughout the present war German commentators have harped on England as "raumfremd" (not native) to Europe. Phrases like "Britain must cease sticking her nose into European affairs" are banded about in the daily press.

4. Europe's press would be regimented. Reich's Press Chief Otto Dietrich, addressing a group of foreign correspondents, said: "Reform of the press is also a point on the program for the new order in Europe."

5. Compulsory military and labor service in all probability would be prevalent throughout Europe, but with Germany determining what arms should be allotted to non-Germans.

6. Europe, as seen through German eyes, would emerge as a social paradise, that is, not only would the German passion for organization pervade every hour of the German's working time but even his pauses during the work and his daily recreation.

The work's vacation time would be arranged for him through a gigantic extension of the German "strength-through-joy" idea. Standard scales of pay, sickness and accident insurance and old age pensions would come to him if he obeyed the rules. On the other hand, the offender against authority would find himself cut off from the new order's benefits.

Get More Pay

VANCOUVER (CP)—Demands of the bakery and confectionery workers' Union, Local No. 468, for a 10 per cent increase in wages and 15 cents an hour night compensation pay were met by the Montreal Bakery in a mutual agreement reached in discussions here last night by the two parties.

$1,000,000 FIRE

MANILA (AP)—Manila's vital harbor area was ravaged by a $1,000,000 fire early tonight.

Flames surged through a large part of the quarters housing the Manila Trading and Supply Co., a Ford agency located within a block of Manila Bay. The buildings were badly damaged and many new cars and accessories destroyed.

Rome Admits Loss

ROME (AP)—The Italian high command acknowledged today a British submarine had sunk the 11,398-ton Italian steamship Esperia in the central Mediterranean but said almost all of those aboard had been rescued by escorting warships.

FLIER UNINJURED

CLOVERDALE, B.C. (CP)—Surrey municipal police said today Aircraftman James Johnson of the R.C.A.F. was uninjured when a Tiger Moth training plane from No. 18 elementary air training school which he was piloting crashed into a tree. Johnson climbed from the machine with only scratches, though the aircraft buried itself in the ground.

PROXY MARRIAGE

VANCOUVER (CP)—A pretty South American girl arrived here by plane today to join the man she married recently by proxy—but she wasn't quite sure whether she was Mrs. Hector Morrison or still Senorita Francisco Aguirre Martinez of Guayaquil, Ecuador. The proxy marriage was conducted at the home of the bride's parents at Guayaquil with a friend acting for Morrison.

On her arrival to join her husband today, she was informed that although the church recognizes marriage by proxy, the state does not.

So the couple will be married again Friday morning in Holy Rosary Cathedral here—and this time the groom will attend the wedding.

THEY FOUGHT FOR BRITAIN—All these men, from the 'teens to the seventies, served England—some on the sultry sands of Africa, some in the catastrophe at Crete, others in the far-flung battlefields of the Near East. Some wounded, some in rags and tatters, they're pictured arriving in New York on a British transport on their way home. The familiar thumbs-up gesture tells how they feel about it.

British Bombs on Kassel

LONDON (CP)—British bombers smashed at the German industrial town of Kassel, site of important railway workshops, during last night.

The Air Ministry said many bombs were seen to burst on the targets. Bomb aimers were aided by favorable weather which allowed a clear view of the railway works.

Also attacked were objectives at Muenster and other places in western Germany, as well as docks at the Channel port of Cherbourg.

All British planes returned to their base, although two members of one crew were reported killed in an accident.

The raid on the locomotive shops was considered particularly important in view of the Russian campaign, which makes great use of railway transportation for troops and supplies.

Nazi air operations against Britain during the night were confined to single-plane forays over coastal districts in eastern and southwest England. One enemy plane was shot down.

(In Berlin the Germans announced some civilian casualties resulted from R.A.F. bombings of the regions around Kassel and western Germany during the night. Kassel, in Prussia, is approximately 200 miles airline southwest of Berlin.)

CHEMAINUS CHURCH 50TH ANNIVERSARY

CHEMAINUS — St. Michael's and All Angels' Church celebrated its 50th anniversary with special services on Sunday.

The anniversary services began with the celebration of Holy Communion, followed by a children's service at which 50 candles were lit by 10 small children. Rev. T. L. Hipp conducted both services; also the special evening service at 7.30, with Ven. Archdeacon Robert Connell as speaker. Also present and taking part were three former vicars, Rev. W. Barton, 1907-1909; Rev. S. Ryall, 1909-1918; and Rev. B. E. Spurling, 1923-1930. A letter of congratulation was read from Rev. E. O. Robathan, who is now in the United States.

During his address, Mr. Connell reported that Rev. R. D. Porter, 1919-1923, and Rev. E. G. Millar, 1894-1898, were both residing in England and in good health. He also paid special tribute to the organizer and builder of the present church, Rev. D. Holmes, who, according to church records, had built and was chief mover in six other churches, including All Saints', Westholme, in 1880.

Present in the congregation was Mrs. M. Rogers Walcott, a daughter of Rev. R. J. Roberts of Kuper Island New England Mission Church, 1880.

An "at home" was held later, the ladies of the guild and auxiliary serving refreshments.

Victoria visitors included Mrs. E. J. Palmer, Mrs. S. Ryall and Dr. and Mrs. H. B. Rogers.

JAPS TO LEAVE BRITISH LANDS

TOKYO (AP)—Japan is sending ships to Great Britain and British dominions to remove Japanese nationals, the foreign office announced today.

Three ships will be dispatched, one to Malaya, one to the middle east and east Africa, and one to Europe.

The announcement did not mention Japanese in the United States, Canada, Australia or South Africa, but said the ships would be sent to the other places named because of "a radical increase" in number of Japanese residing in the British Empire who desire to return to Japan.

In Ottawa, Seiji Yoshizawa, Japanese minister to Canada, said he had received no information from his home office on the subject.

Sooke A.R.P. Lecture

A lecture on airplane use in the war with instructions on how to detect one plane from another, friendly or otherwise, will be given by Warden D. J. Derohie at a general meeting of A.R.P. groups in Sooke Community Hall Friday evening.

Presentation of St. John Ambulance certificates and vouchers will also take place at Friday's meeting.

Churchill Predicts Nazi Action Against U.S. Atlantic Patrols

LONDON (AP)—The text, in part, of Prime Minister Churchill's statement in the House of Commons today follows:

Late in July I learned that the President of the United States would welcome a meeting with me in order to survey the entire world position in relation to the several and common interests of our respective countries. . . .

Important conclusions were reached on four main topics. First of all there was the eight-point declaration of broad principles and aims which guide and govern the action of the British and United States governments and peoples amid the many dangers by which they are beset in these times.

Secondly, that measures should be taken to help Russia resist the hideous onslaught Hitler has made upon her. Thirdly, the policy to be pursued towards Japan in order, if possible, to put a stop to further encroachments in the Far East likely to endanger the safety, and interests of Great Britain or the United States, and by timely action to prevent spread of the war to the Pacific Ocean.

Close Relationship Established

Also there were a large number of purely technical matters dealt with and a close personal relationship established between high naval, military and air attaches of both countries. . . .

I have, as the House knows, hitherto consistently deprecated formulation of peace aims or war aims, however you put it, by His Majesty's government at this stage, and I deprecate it at this time when the end of the war is not in sight and when the conflict sways to and fro with alternating fortunes and while conditions and associations at the end of the war are unforeseeable, but the joint declaration by Great Britain and the U.S.A. is an event of a totally different nature.

Although the principles in the declaration have long been familiar to the British and American democracies, the fact that it is a united declaration sets up a milestone or monument which needs only the stroke of victory to become a permanent part of the history of human progress.

First, the joint declaration does not try to explain how the principles proclaimed by it are to be applied to each and every case which will have to be dealt with when the war comes to an end. It would not be wise for us at this moment to be drawn into laborious discussion as to how it is to fit all the manifold problems with which we shall be faced after the war.

Secondly, the joint declaration does not qualify in any way the various statements of policy which have been made from time to time about development of constitutional government in India, Burma, or any other parts of the British Empire.

Equal Partnership Promised India

We are pledged by the declaration of August, 1940, to help India obtain free and equal partnership in the British Commonwealth with ourselves, subject of course to fulfillment of obligations arising from our long connection with India and our responsibilities to its creeds, races and interests.

Burma is also covered by our considered policy of establishing Burmese self-government and by measures already in progress.

We had in mind primarily restoration of the sovereignty, self-government and national life of the states and nations of Europe now under Nazi yoke, and the principles which would govern any alterations in the territorial boundaries of countries which may have to be made.

The Battle of the Atlantic has been going on unceasingly. In his attempt to blockade and starve out these islands by U-boat and air attack the enemy continually changes his tactics. Driven from one beat to the next, chased from home waters and driven from the approaches to these islands, he proceeds to the other side of the Atlantic. Increasingly hampered by United States patrols in the north Atlantic, he develops his malice in the south and we follow hard upon his track and sometimes we anticipate his tactics.

But it is undesirable to give him too precise or, above all, too early information of the success or failure of each of his various manoeuvres. It was therefore decided that publication of our shipping losses at regular monthly intervals should cease.

The public, and indeed the whole world, have, however, derived the impression that things have got much better these two months (July and August). I cannot deny that this is so.

Improvement in the sea war manifests itself in two directions. In the first place there is a very great falling off in sinkings of British and Allied shipping and a corresponding increase in the tonnage of valuable cargoes safely landed on our shores. . . .

The second improvement is the extraordinary rise in the last three months in the destruction of German and Italian shipping which has been achieved very largely by the development of new and brilliant tactics by the coastal command and R.A.F. bombing squadrons acting with the coastal command. . . .

To the exploits of the air force must be added those of our submarines. Destruction of enemy shipping by both forms of attacks has been enormous. In fact, I may say, and I would like the House to pay attention to this statement because it is really an extraordinary statement for anyone to be able to make:

I may say that sinkings of British and Allied shipping by enemy action in July and August added together do not amount to more than one third of German and Italian tonnage we have sunk by our aircraft and our submarines.

How remarkable that statement is may be judged when we remember that we present perhaps 10, or it might even be 20, times the target to hostile attacks upon the seas as is presented to us by the shipping of the enemy. . . .

I have often looked for an opportunity of paying tribute to our submarines. There is no branch of His Majesty's forces which in this war has suffered the same proportion of fatal losses as our submarine service. It is the most dangerous of all services.

That is perhaps the reason why the First Lord tells me that entry into it is keenly sought by officers and men. I feel sure the House would wish to testify its gratitude and admiration to our submarine crews for their skill and devotion, which have proved of inestimable value to the life of our country.

During 1941 British submarines have sunk or seriously damaged 17 enemy warships—in 1941 alone—some of them U-boats, and besides warships 105 supply ships have fallen to their torpedoes. This average is 15 per month, or one every two days. . . .

There are other perils which have been overcome and other labors of splendid quality which have been performed unknown or almost unknown to the public. . . .

Anti-mining Service Does Fine Work

The first deals with the anti-mining service. We don't hear much about the mining menace now. Yet almost every night 30 or 40 enemy airplanes are casting these destructive engines, with all their ingenious variations, in the most likely spots to catch our shipping.

The attack which began in November, 1939, indeed when the war opened, with the ordinary moored mine laid by night in the approaches to our harbors was succeeded before the end of 1939 by the magnetic mine with all its mysterious terrors and now is waged continually by the acoustic mine as well as the magnetic mine.

We don't hear much about all this now because by the resources of British science and organization it has been largely mastered. We don't hear much about it because 20,000 men and 100 ships are toiling ceaselessly to clear the approaches to ports every morning of the deadly deposits of the night.

It is going on night after night and day after day, and it may well be imagined, as the service has to be performed in all weathers, constantly under the attack of the enemy, how excellent is the service rendered by the faithful men engaged in it.

It is done in secret and in silence, and we live on. It is taken as a matter of course, like the salvage service, to which I must also refer, since this has recovered from the beginning of the war, upwards of 1,000,000 tons of shipping which would otherwise have been cast away. . . .

Although there has been very great improvement in our losses at sea in July and August, it would be very foolish and a great mistake to assume that the grave dangers which threaten us are at an end. The enemy is employing a greater number of U-boats and long-range aircraft than ever before, and we must expect further increases.

'Our Resources' Continually Grow

We, for our part, have made prodigious exertions, and our resources are continually increasing. . . .

It must be remembered also that the Germans are much hampered on the American part of the Atlantic by fear of trouble with the powerful American naval forces which ceaselessly patrol the approaches to the western hemisphere. This has been a help to us, but I could wish it might be a greater help.

The enemy's tactics may change. No doubt Hitler would rather finish off Russia and Britain before coming to close quarters with the United States.

Hitler has, however, also the greatest possible need to prevent precious munition supplies now streaming across the Atlantic in pursuance of the policy of the United States government from reaching our shores. Should he do so the area of danger zones will again become ocean wide. Meanwhile, let us hear no vain talk of the battle of the Atlantic having been won.

It was with great pleasure that on my homeward voyage I visited Iceland. We were received with the utmost cordiality by the government and the people.

I had the honor to review large numbers of strong British and United States forces which, no doubt, for performance of entirely different and separate duties happen to be engaged jointly in defending this important island, a stepping stone across the Atlantic, from Nazi intrusion and attack.

Very considerable United States and British naval and air forces are assembled in Iceland.

Spacious airfields which we have constructed and are expanding there and in Newfoundland will play an ever-increasing part not only in control of the broad waters but in the continued flow of the ever-broadening stream of heavy bombers now acting against Germany night after night, which will play a decisive part, or one of the decisive parts, in final victory. . . .

Syria Occupation Only Temporary

Occupation of Syria by the army of the Nile carried with it the means of security and safety of Cyprus which until then had been in great danger. All this part of the Levant then came into a satisfactory condition. Our naval and air control over the eastern end of the Mediterranean became effective and we got into direct contact with our Turkish friends and secured control of the pipeline and other resources. . . .

We are in Syria only to the end of the war. However, we must make it quite clear that our policy and that of our Free French allies is that Syria to be handed back to the Syrians who will assume as soon as possible their independent sovereign rights. . . .

We do not propose at this point to create an independent Syrian government or governments, which must wait until the end of the war, but we propose they should take a constantly-increasing part in administration. There is no question of France maintaining the same position which she exercised in Syria before the war and which the French government had realized must come to an end.

On the other hand we recognize that among all the nations of Europe the position of France in Syria is one of special privilege and that in so far as any country will have special influence there that France will be pre-eminent.

Powerful reinforcements have reached the army of the Nile and I now feel considerable confidence that we shall be able to defend Egypt successfully from German invasion across the western desert. . . .

Magnificent resistance of the Russian armies and the successful manner in which their vast front is being withdrawn in the teeth of the Nazi invasion makes it certain Hitler's hopes of a short war with Russia will be dispelled. Already in three months he has lost more German blood than was shed in any single year of the last war.

Already he faces the certainty of having to maintain his armies spread from the Arctic to the Black Sea with precarious lines of communication through all the severities of the Russian winter and vigorous counter-strokes that may be expected from the Russian armies.

From the moment, now nearly 80 days ago, when Russia was invaded we have cast about for every means to give with utmost speed effective help to our new ally. . . . The need is urgent and the scale is heavy because a considerable part of the munitions industry and the iron and steel production of Russia has fallen into the hands of the enemy. . . .

Serious Sacrifices May Be Expected

We must be prepared for serious sacrifices in the munitions field in order to meet the needs of Russia. The utmost exertions and energy will therefore be required from all concerned in production in order not only to help Russia but in order to fill the gaps which must now be opened in our own longed for and at last arriving supply. . . .

The flow of our own production in this country and in our Empire is still rising. It will reach the full flood in the third year of the war when our factories are completed and come into bearing.

If the United States are to fulfill the task they are setting themselves, large installations will have to be set up or converted and there will have to be a further curtailment of civilian consumption over there.

We must ourselves expect definite reduction in the importation of supplies from America upon which we had counted. Within certain limits we are prepared to accept those facts and their consequences. . . .

Only three routes (to Russia) are open. The Arctic route via Archangel, which may be hampered by winter ice, the Far Eastern route via Vladivostok, which is scowled upon by the Japanese and operates only over 7,000 miles of railway line, and finally there is the route across Persia, which leads over a 500-mile stretch from the Persian Gulf into that great inland sea, the Caspian, upon which Russia maintains strong naval forces and which gives access to the heart of Russia, the Volga basin.

U.S., British Supplies Going to Russia

We must have control and maintenance of the through communications from the warm water port of Basra to the Caspian Sea. It is from this point particularly that American supplies can be carried into the centre of Russia in an ever-widening flow, and British supplies as well. . . .

The Allied front now runs in an enormous crescent from Spitzbergen in the Arctic Ocean region to Tobruk in the western desert and our section of this front will be held by British and Empire armies with their growing strength, fed and equipped by sea-borne supplies from Great Britain, the United States, India and Australia, and I am glad to say that adequate naval power will be at hand, both in the Atlantic and Indian Oceans, to secure these seas against all attacks. . . .

The mood of Great Britain is widely and rightly averse from every form of shallow or premature exultation. This is not the time for boasting or glowing prophecies, but there is this: a year ago our position looked forlorn and well-nigh desperate to all eyes but our own. Today we may say aloud before an awestruck world, "we still are masters of our fate—we still are captains of our soul."

COST OF LIVING UP 12.8 PER CENT

OTTAWA (CP)—A jump in Canada's cost-of-living index from 111.9 at July 2 to 113.7 at August 1 was announced today by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

This increase, the largest recorded since the outbreak of war, means an increase of 12.8 per cent in the cost of living in the Dominion, as calculated by the statistics bureau, since the war started.

"The sharp rise between July 2 and August 1 was due mainly to high food prices," the bureau said.

Today's announcement was of particular import because it is the Dominion's cost-of-living index which forms the basis for cost-of-living bonus principle outlined by the government in P.C. 7440.

Germans Lose Ships To British Navy

LONDON (CP)—British naval forces in the Arctic have sunk three German ships supplying troops on the Russian Arctic front and in addition probably have sunk the German warship Bremse, the Admiralty announced tonight.

(In Berlin the high command announced loss of the German artillery cadet ship Bremse after a short and fierce fight with British units in northern waters. The 1,400-ton warship was on convoy duty, supplying German troops in the extreme north, a Nazi communique said. She was taken by surprise, said the Germans, by a British cruiser and two destroyers off northern Norway while visibility was poor.)

U.S. AID NECESSARY, SAYS WOODWARD

TACOMA (AP) — Citizens of Canada and the United States must not resort to wishful thinking in the present war crisis, Hon. W. C. Woodward, Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia told members of the Tacoma Chamber of Commerce yesterday.

"We hear a lot of talk about shortages of gasoline and other materials crippling the central powers—the Russians winning the war for us," he said, "but no one is going to win the war for us. We must win it ourselves—England and Canada, with the industrial help of the United States."

"We can not possibly win the war without your help," he added.

The Lieutenant-Governor described the war situation in Britain as "ghastly" and said he had seen areas of historical buildings, covering a mile and a half, burning from bombing attacks.

"The background of your history and my history was being destroyed," he said.

The British people of all classes have no false ideas of what will happen to them if the Germans should win, he added.

Britons Pray For Russians

LONDON (CP) — In churches which many times in the past rang with denunciations of all things Communistic, millions of Britons prayed Sunday for a victory of Russian as well as British arms.

A day of prayer, requested by the King, coincided with the first anniversary of the beginning of the great air assault on London. One year ago 350 planes swooped down on this capital and flames leaped from bombed docks and buildings.

No bombs disturbed London's churchgoers at the week-end, but elsewhere there were grim reminders the air war is not ended.

Worshippers in one southwest England town found their chapel shattered by an overnight raid.

The Archbishop of Canterbury in a broadcast service appealed to Britons to devote their prayers especially to the Russian armies. He said the war had become a conflict between wholly opposite concepts of man—the one as a creature of God, the other as a creature of the state—in which there could be "no compromise, indeed no neutrality."

Arthur Cardinal Hinsley said in a broadcast that Poland had made a pact with the Soviet in order to deliver her sons and daughters "from slavery more awful than death."

He added, "Russia or Russia's government we know to have been guilty of great wrongs to others and Poland, also. But a people whose rulers have done wrongs does not forfeit all its own rights. We pray that defence of Russia's rights may help repair Poland's unmerited wrongs."

The Cardinal said, "Our Prime Minister and Mr. Roosevelt have stated great aims of victorious peace—freedom from want and freedom from fear. This war, we believe, was forced upon us as the necessary, the sole means of securing a lasting peace. Never again must peace be preparation for war."

Big Anti-inflation Program Off? Board May Not Use Wide Powers on Prices

By NORMAN MACLEOD

OTTAWA — Highlight of the moment on Parliament Hill is the nonappearance so far of the drastic decrees of further economic regimentation which the new and enlarged powers vested in the Wartime Prices and Trade Board were announced as heralding.

The failure of these new controls to materialize is regarded as significant in federal circles because of definite indications that they may not be attempted at all in the manner that originally was intended.

From informed quarters the word is now being circulated that the plan of spectacular and sudden action by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board has been largely abandoned in the official circles which were pressing for it, and that the board—despite the plenary powers it now possesses—will carry on in accordance with its tested formula of trial and error, dealing with situations as they arise and initiating no drastic action until concrete problems call for them.

IMPORTANT CHANGE

The change in policy which such an intention represents is of definitely major character. It is well known on Parliament Hill that at the time the Wartime Prices Board was given new and almost czar-like powers, there was a strong school of opinion in the government which held that the board should initiate immediately a spectacular offensive on the economic front that would use the new powers to their utmost. The ultimate objective would be to crush once and for all the influences presently regarded as threatening inflation.

That more moderate counsels have since prevailed is generally believed, and their victory is attributed to two factors.

In the first place, the Wartime

Prices and Trade Board itself is reported reliably to be far from satisfied that it yet has the power to sit effectively on the lid of inflation, so long as wages remain excluded from its authority. It is true that the celebrated Order-in-Council 7440 of the Department of Labor, which defines reasonable wages as the average of the 1926-1929 period, plus a cost-of-living bonus, does provide a measure of wages control, but the difficulty is that it applies only to industries working on war contracts. The great bulk of industry — especially the nation's agricultural industry — is not covered by it, and complaints to the board against increasing labor costs, necessitating higher prices, are arriving daily.

DAUNTED BY TASK

In the second place, it is understood that the mere mechanics involved in the thoroughgoing price regimentation that the Wartime Prices Board now has the power to impose have daunted even the officials of that body.

The board is definitely of the opinion that it lacks administrative machinery upon the scale that would be necessary to carry out the spectacular program first suggested to it. To attempt it from their present resources, its members believe, would be simply to invite inevitable confusion in the Dominion's economic life. The board rightly feels that economic confusion would not be conducive to an efficient war effort.

Hence the decision to make haste slowly, to proceed upon the "trouble-shooting" principle of dealing with specific situations as they arise, and to make as sparing and gradual use of the powers recently conferred as is consistent with carrying out the anti-inflation purpose for which the board was created.

Hitler's Moscow Drive As Slow as Napoleon's

By J. R. TRIPLETT and GLADWIN HILL

NEW YORK (AP) — Hitler isn't getting to Moscow any faster than Napoleon, whose fastest mobile unit was a horse.

The two would-be conquerors of Russia started their drives toward Moscow on almost the same date—Hitler on June 22, Napoleon on June 24.

To maintain the parallel, the Fuehrer would have to stride into the Kremlin as a conqueror September 12.

It was at the Kremlin that Napoleon, beneath the smoke of may fires set by the Russians, wound up an 83-day campaign launched from a line through middle Poland and East Prussia in 1812.

Hitler's drive, carried on by panzer divisions, dive bombers and paratroopers in contrast to Napoleon's horse and foot troops is 78 days old.

Napoleon got to Smolensk August 16. Hitler, possibly conscious of the anniversary, began claiming Smolensk a month sooner, although the German high command did not say until August 6 that "the battle of Smolensk" had been won. On August 11, when the first United States correspondent was allowed in, battle was raging just beyond the city.

BORODINO ANNIVERSARY

Today is the anniversary of Napoleon's battle of Borodino, just west of Moscow, which gave him access to the capital.

At this writing, Borodino hadn't reported sighting Hitler.

In his drive into the low countries, the Fuehrer averaged about 30 miles a day. In his drive toward Moscow, he has averaged barely seven miles a day.

Noting at offset of two days in the starting times, here is a comparison of the Warsaw-to-Moscow timetables:

Position	Napoleon	Hitler
Start	June 24	June 22
Vilna	June 28	June 24
Grodno	July 5	June 23
Smolensk	Aug. 16	July 18*
Moscow	Sept. 14	????

*Germans claimed capture of Smolensk July 18. German high command said Aug. 6 "the battle of Smolensk" had been won.

In detail, the two leaders' strategies differ greatly.

DIFFERENT TECHNIQUES

Napoleon's drive was a single spearhead toward Moscow. Hitler attacked the 2,000-mile north-and-south Russian front in a dozen places, and his drive toward Moscow has been slowed down by the necessity of reinforcing his many engagements at other points, notably the drive toward Leningrad and the drive into the Ukraine.

On October 19—only six weeks from this date — the French moved out of Moscow after taking it September 14—and on the 24th were beaten by the resurgent Russians at Maloyaroslavets.

On the 27th came the first frosts of the winter that soon vanquished Napoleon. By the first of December, he was back in Paris, a beaten emperor.

Viscount Bennett Well, Grows Younger With Years

By R. K. CARNEGIE

OTTAWA (CP) — "R.B." has become Viscount Bennett, but the charm of his hospitality remains unchanged.

At his country estate, Juniper Hill, in Surrey, Eng., he is the same genial host that he was in Ottawa when he made his guests happy and at their ease.

Impressing is the manner in which Lord Bennett has improved physically, as compared to the tired and somewhat corpulent man who left Ottawa in 1938. He has lost all excess weight. And, immaculately clothed as always, he is one of the best dressed men to be seen in London.

ELASTIC STEP

His good health was noticeable last week when, as his guest at Juniper Hill, I walked with him over the rather steep hills of the estate. He took these inclines with quick, elastic step and did not seem to tire.

He hasn't much time, however, to spend in his beautiful gardens and ancient groves. His is a busy life, with his work in London at the Ministry of Information and his many calls to help guide war charity organizations.

Lord Bennett has chosen his coat of arms. He is entitled to two armorial supporters and they will be the moose for his native New Brunswick and the buffalo for the prairies where he spent many years.

Some world-famous paintings hang on the wall of the reception room. The point of honor, however, is occupied by a barometer, the gift of the Parliamentary

Blitz Preparations

Londoners Stand Up To Terrifying Experiment

LONDON (AP) — Workers, children and bomb-shocked neurotics were led into dark and cold tomblike vaults in London at the week-end and in one of the most horrible experiments of the war, were exposed to an artificial blitz bombing calculated to be just exactly as terrifying as the real thing.

Air raid precaution officials and physicians conducted the experiment with a view to preparing Britons for things to come in a fall and winter which government leaders have predicted will bring German raids perhaps worse than those of last year.

Wide-eyed, expecting anything, the subjects of the test huddled together as they were led underground. Some clutched the hands of others. A switch was turned, and there began a terrible sound—the raw reproduction of air raid noises.

REAL THING

The noise, nothing concocted in a sound-effect studio, was the real thing, recorded during one of London's worst raids last year.

Screaming sirens in a sinking and rising wall filled the vault with ominous notes. Presently "bang! bang! bang!" went the guns. The drone of bombers was heard overhead.

The sounds swelled in the dark vault. The guns kept banging. Then big bombs burst. The guns kept up. More bombs. Then the crackle of flames. Next clanging fire engines added their noise, the other sounds continuing.

The experimenters, fearing less they try their subjects too hard, softened the sounds momentarily to see how the people were standing the realistic reproduction.

No one was crying out. A flashlight swung around the room, revealing drawn faces and frightened eyes. But no one was swooning. The experimenters stepped up the amplification.

Pandemonium broke loose. To the awful accompaniment were added wails and screams, and the shouted orders of wardens and firefighters and doctors.

After this climax the noises gradually died out. At all clear the people were led from the vaults.

The physicians questioned those who had been through it. It was terrifying, they agreed, but they said they were glad for having been through it.

OVERJOYED

The A.R.P. was overjoyed with the results. The suggestion was advanced that whole populations be put through the experiment to make them "immune, through familiarity, to fear caused by air raid noises."

This is a psychological principle underlying a visual experiment now being run by the government in motion picture houses in various parts of the country. A film, said to have been captured from the Nazis, purporting to show the German campaign against Russia with all the terrors of war clearly set forth, is being shown to harden the population.

The Germans are said to hope for the opposite effect—morale-breaking.

The first air raid experiment was conducted in the vaults of the Church of England Temperance Society's home for treatment of people suffering from neuroses.

Some of these patients underwent the experiment, and there also were people brought in from nearby towns and the countryside. "The theory is," said the A.R.P., "that you can accustom yourself to anything. And the things you know don't frighten like the unknown."

U.S. Ready to Fight If Ships Attacked

By PETER EDSON

WASHINGTON — The possibility of the United States doing a back-alley entrance into war now looms up with all the likelihood of a night collision at the crossroads when the traffic lights aren't working. It can be mapped out something like this:

Although President Roosevelt, debarking from the good yacht Potomac after the historic conference with Churchill, declared the United States was no nearer war than it had been before, the answer may be that the country was already closer to war than a good many people realized.

"No closer" in that respect, can also mean that we are "no farther away" from war. Shortly after that it was officially announced that "already many shiploads have left our shores, and more will leave in the immediate future." It is in that last phrase, "and more will leave in the immediate future," that all the danger of a back-door entrance into the shooting match really lies.

Mention of specific ship movements is of course frowned upon by naval censorship. From past announcements, however, it is definitely known that U.S. ships have been carrying supplies to Iceland, around Africa and up through the Red Sea to supply the British Near East command, and most recently, across the Pacific to Vladivostok to supply Soviet Russia. From those known ship movements, it can be seen that U.S. vessels are actually sailing the seven seas. Danger can come from any direction, and it isn't telling too much to say that preparations have been made for danger to come from any direction.

For a hypothetical case to show how the United States might easily become involved through the movement of these supply ships, take the most recent sailings to Vladivostok. Any way you chart a course to that Siberian port, you would cross Japanese waters. If those waters are not an active naval combat zone, they are what the Japanese choose to call a neutrality zone, and they are just about as vague and legalistic in this as the United States government is in defining its neutrality zone.

These first shiploads of supplies for the Soviet may be crossing Japanese waters any day now. If the Japanese choose to consider those shipments a violation of their sacred neutrality, there are three things they can do—seize the shipments, sink them, or conveniently look the other way.

If the last-mentioned policy is followed, nothing happens. It is the opinion of a good many Washington gold braiders that Japan will let the ships go through to avoid an incident. Just the same, it can be stated definitely that a course of action has been planned to meet the situation if the Japanese should either sink or seize an American ship.

Some were little green squashes. One or two were somewhat similar to green Hubbard's, and right on the same vines were a couple of yellow monsters which looked like crosses between certain types of squash and pumpkins but nothing like Hubbard's.

But when it came to raising fruits and vegetables common to England these gardens were a delight. Plums and pears, all grown against brick walls for the added heat, were almost ready to pick.

With "R.B." I wandered among the ancient yew trees, across the lush lawns, viewed a stretch of Roman road which crosses the estate and was built when Caesar's legions were in Britain. We had long talks about Canada and the war.

At the end of the visit we drove back to London together and Lord Bennett, with the step of a man putting all his energies into accomplishing a job, disappeared in a modern stone building which overlooks the Embankment, ship en route to Vladivostok. It is recalled in Washington that at a press conference this summer, the President took considerable pains to give the correspondents a carefully-prepared review history lesson on how the infant U.S. Navy drove Algerian pirates from the sea. That declaration was not just accidental. It was a definite statement of present-day policy.

Applying that to l'affaire Vladivostok, it would follow that if Japan sinks or seizes any U.S. ships en route to Siberia, they would be branded as pirates and the United States Navy would be ordered to go blow them right out of the seas.

When and if ever that happens, the United States would be in a war right through the back-alley, without any formal declaration of war, without any delay, without any asking for congressional sanction, without, at first, even an expeditionary force. It would be merely a naval action to clean out pirates.

Shipments to Vladivostok provide the perfect test case. The vessels carrying the supplies will be unarmed. In that respect, they will be merchantmen going about their business of international trade. That the tankers will be carrying oil or aviation gas for the military aircraft of the Red Army is incidental. Up to the time of the embargo, tankers carried oil for the planes of Japan and only the Chinese objected.

CONVOYS NOT AN ISSUE

Whether the ships follow their course singly or steam along together is immaterial. Even if they don't go it alone, they will not be traveling in convoy in the sense that a convoy always is accompanied by armed escort vessels. But if the ships are stopped, singly or in fleet formation, here will be a case of something short of convoys meaning shooting, and something short of shooting meaning war.

There is perhaps one other possibility. German commerce raiders have operated in the Pacific and Indian Oceans. One of them might take a pop at a U.S. ship supplying the British. It can be assumed that if this happened the anti-piracy policy would be followed just the same.

Spitzbergen

PART OF THIS DOMINION'S ARMY IN Great Britain has, according to Mr. Ross Munro, Canadian Press war correspondent who accompanied the expedition, "delivered one of Canada's heaviest blows of the war against the Germans and deprived the Nazis of the rich coal deposits of the bleak Spitzbergen islands." But there is much more in the "incident" than this: While the Canadian army in the United Kingdom may not have been seriously depleted by this useful and tactical economic manoeuvre, some of our men have at last been introduced to one phase of the job for which they volunteered; they have exchanged the tedium of intensive preparatory training for action which is meat and drink to these gallant and enthusiastic sons of the Maple Leaf.

It is superfluous to enlarge upon the psychological value of the "invasion" of territory whose coal deposits have been of considerable importance and value to the common enemy. And because the representatives of the fighting democracies have again "got there first," thus presenting the Germans with another fait accompli, the Nazi high command—already in a state of jitters in respect of the eastern front and trying to recover from the effects of the R.A.F.'s monster raid on Berlin—may reasonably begin to wonder what further "irritations" Mr. Mackenzie King, Mr. Churchill, and Mr. Roosevelt have concocted between them.

We are not told in precise terms what is likely to follow the initial occupation of Spitzbergen. Whether the coal mines have been, or will be, rendered useless, or whether they will be worked and their products shipped to Britain is not explained in the interesting and ably-phrased dispatches from the Canadian Press correspondent. There is nevertheless the plain statement that the annual production has amounted to between 600,000 and 700,000 tons of what is known as excellent steam coal; this compares with an export total for 1925 of 413,000 tons—the result of intensive development which received its impetus from the industrial demands of Narvik and the Swedish railways after the first Great War. At that time, bituminous coal of Carboniferous age, while available, had not been mined; no doubt this class is included in the increased output. In any event, the main points on which special emphasis is naturally placed are the fact that the enemy may no longer look forward to supplies of coal from this Arctic community, and that the miners and their families have been removed to Britain where they will be in no danger similar to that to which the inhabitants of the Lofoten Islands were exposed after the successful raid carried out by British detachments some months ago.

The sea around Spitzbergen is shallow, and the ice readily accumulates. Pack ice prevents access to most shores except for a few months in the year. However, the warm North Atlantic drift sends a branch to the western sections of the island, which, of course, has a moderating effect on climatic conditions, leaving an open passage which permits vessels to approach the western coast during the major part of the year. While there are no regular sailings to and from this Arctic outpost, tourist vessels make occasional calls in July and August, and it is during the summer season that colliers go to and from Norway. For many years, incidentally, Norway has maintained a radio station at Green Harbor. It will be interesting to learn, therefore, what program, if any, has been arranged for the Canadian "army" of peaceful and protective occupation.

Canada's Prime Essential

ONE OR TWO POINTS EMPHASIZED by Mr. A. R. Mosher, president of the Canadian Congress of Labor, in his opening address at its Hamilton convention yesterday should be carefully considered not only by all organized workers of this country but also by the people as a whole. Apart from the natural and correct assertion that the working people of this Dominion have more at stake than any other class—which in itself suggests elimination of industrial strife—he posed this argument to the delegates:

"It is more important, in my opinion, to defeat Hitler and his gangsters than to bring the most tyrannical and reactionary employer in Canada to his knees. Action against him (the employer) can wait, but Hitler won't wait, and there can be no peace or hope for anyone in the world until Hitler is beaten and Germany disarmed."

All will agree with Mr. Mosher that the task of defeating the totalitarian oligarchy will require the "utmost effort and sacrifice" by the workers of the whole British Commonwealth. The injunction applies especially to Canada, not only because her industrial capacity is much greater than that of all the other overseas self-governing Dominions, but also because of her manufacturing and economic collaboration with the United States. Another important inter-related factor as far as we are concerned, of course, is the shorter haul from Canada to the United Kingdom, a route, by the way, the protection of which is now shared by United States as well as Canadian and British war craft.

Never in Canada's history has industrial harmony been more imperative than it is today; never before has the need for the elimination of everything calculated to disturb it been more insistent, for Canadians are going through a period in which their design for the tapestry of the world to come must assume a definite pattern. And we are of the opinion that the average employer, no less than the average worker, has made up his mind to certain fundamental changes the future will demand if Capital and Labor are to go amicably hand in hand with the common weal as their joint objective. Numerous manifestations of this resolve have made their appearance in many quarters—not with any fanfare but in practice.

A few industrialists steeped in the philosophy of special privilege, who cling tenaciously to fiscal policies which have produced much of the world's economic heartache, may try to re-enthroned their discredited gospel. They may hesitate to realize that any part of the "Atlantic Charter" contains a warning to them. But the sheer weight of post-war circumstances will change numerous aspects of our national life just as the progress of the war has automatically consigned to the limbo of things forgotten much that had seemed too deep-seated to uproot.

He Did a Good Job

UNTIL MR. KING HAS HAD TIME TO sort out his impressions of his recent visit to Britain, and until he has summed up the meaning and implications of his discussions with Mr. Churchill and members of his cabinet, it would be foolish to speculate on the more specific narrative the Prime Minister will give to Canadians at an early date. All the people of the Dominion, however, are content in the fact that he has returned to this country with an intimate understanding of the latest developments in the war as communicated to him by the British Prime Minister and those who deal only with facts. Even Mr. King's bitterest critics, as well as that fast-dwindling element which has assumed a concept of Canada's contribution to the Empire's war effort which had not stood up under even exhaustive scrutiny, are probably realizing now that the head of the government at Ottawa has been for many months past in much closer association with Mr. Churchill and his government's policy than was generally conceded even by those closely associated with him at the national capital.

It is interesting to note Mr. King's reference to the Vichy government and its representative at Ottawa. Briefly, suggests the Prime Minister, "Mr. Churchill is anxious that this connection (Canada with Vichy) should be maintained between the British Empire" and the somewhat extraordinary administration headed by Marshal Petain and his fellow "collaborators." Canada's representative to Vichy, although stationed in London, visits the seat of the Petain government from time to time. And, argues the Prime Minister, "one never knows the moment developments might make the link between Canada and Vichy highly desirable." Judging by the march of events in Paris and in other parts of occupied France, the seriousness of which is frankly admitted by the Petains, the Darlans, and the rest of the presently Nazi-controlled crew, the conclusions reached by Mr. Churchill and Mr. King on this important phase of Allied policy may soon furnish their own commentary. This is another aspect of Canadian conduct in the troubled international realm which should not be subjected to unintelligent criticism.

He Takes What Is Left

ONE INTERESTING SIDELIGHT ON the Nazi occupation of Greece, especially as a commentary on the "cordial" five-day potlatch between Hitler and Mussolini on the Russo-German front two weeks ago, has found its way into the newspapers from an eyewitness of the Nazi descent upon the brave Hellenes. It seems that the Germans naturally seized most of the food in sight, ate what they could, and sent the rest back to Germany. But about the time they had finished, they were ordered onward, probably to Russia. Eighty thousand of Mussolini's troops were then brought in to do police duty over the conquered. But all the good food had already been consumed by the Nazis, and the Italians have had to make-shift with what was left, which was not much. Somehow this looks like an adequate forecast of what Italy may look forward to in the unlikely event of an Axis victory—Mussolini would get whatever was left after Hitler had taken everything he wanted.

MEN OF DESTINY

From Richmond Times-Dispatch

The fact that it took Hitler and Mussolini five days to cover all phases of the lengthening war, may mean that things aren't quite so rosy as when last they met. It looks as though dirty Russians, who, the Nazis have informed us, are nothing but craxy fanatics, fighting with stupid Asiatic courage, have tossed a couple of gargantuan monkey-wrenches into the once smoothly-oiled totalitarian machinery.

So "Hit" and "Muss" doubtless had a lot to talk about, particularly "Hit," who must be chewing the carpet and wondering ever more poignantly if he didn't make the blunder of the century when he elected to invade Russia. He is a long way from beaten, but if he loses, the beginning of his downfall almost certainly will date from June, when he sent his legions against the Soviet Union—the same month, by the way, in which Napoleon and la grande armee crossed the Niemen traveling in the same direction.

The two men of destiny, the creators of a new order, have served notice there will not be another peace like that of Versailles," said an authoritative commentator in Berlin. It takes some such animal as a Nazi to picture Mussolini as a "man of destiny." However, with the Moscow end of the Axis smashed, and the Tokyo end getting wobbly, the only "man of destiny" around must have been Benito. Maybe he is a man of destiny, but what a destiny!

THE GATE

AT HELL'S GATE, on the Fraser River, you can see today one of the most remarkable spectacles offered by nature anywhere in the world. We stood there on the slippery rocks at the river's edge and watched the salmon coming up, on their way to the spawning grounds. They came in tens of thousands, a solid mass of them milling in every back-ebb—red now, ripening for their reproduction, soon to die. From above, the vast schools of squirming fish looked like a dark purple stain on the brown river. You could hardly thrust a finger between them—a restless, wriggling mass like worms in the bottom of a can.

Then, when their time was come, they rushed at the fearful torrent of Hell's Gate, into the churning wall of water a hundred feet deep. We could see a sudden dark streak dart into the foam and instantly it would be hurled back again, only to return once more and to fail once more.

The fish, ravenous for their spawning grounds, still dove into the vortex and were thrown back, hurled head over tail down the river, which had once been their friend. Hell's Gate is running wild this autumn. The river has dropped and the current has shifted, gaining in momentum as it is pressed down into a narrower gut between the rocks. Unless it rises or falls further, unless the current is diverted and eased, not many of the sockeye will get to the breeding grounds. Relief may come at any hour and the vast schools of fish below the Gate may go upward, but for the moment they are held and frustrated and are beating their lives out against the current.

THE WAVE

With fearful rhythm, a giant wave washes through the Gate. It heaves up a writhing scum of red salmon and hurls them down on a flat shell of rock, then subsides leaving them there to wriggle clumsily back into the water. They are no sooner gone than the wave rises again and piles another layer of fish on the rock. Out in mid-current the sockeye leap high out of the water in a final attempt to stem through the Gate. Fifteen feet out of the foam they leap and as I stood watching, one of them soared out and landed, head first, against the canyon wall, dropping as if dead.

Some fish had managed to get through and were swept, exhausted, into little eddies above the Gate. There they wriggled weakly in the quiet water, thinking themselves safe. But every minute or so the river would well up in a kind of tidal wave, lift them from their secure basins and then, subsiding, suck them out into the main current again. They tried to wriggle into remote holes and crannies. They were wedged between the smaller rocks, they gasped and struggled until water back into the current. All their fight through the Gate was lost.

HOME

HOW LONG they can wait thus at the Gate, no man knows. The experts watch them anxiously, knowing that the great salmon runs of the future are at stake. These fish were hatched in remote streams and trickles far in the interior of British Columbia. They have gone to sea for three years and yet in all the waters of the ocean have come back and found their own river, the Fraser. Now they are on their way to their own streams and spawning grounds. The Harrison River salmon will not come up this far. The Shuswap Lake salmon will never spawn here but will die on the rocks rather than abandon the journey. It must go home to spawn and die.

How to explain this strange hunger? No man can explain it. The greatest salmon experts in the world stood with us at Hell's Gate and admitted that they knew nothing about the salmon—nothing of importance. They are gradually finding out something. A couple of young scientists were tagging some of the salmon, thrusting a wire through their backs and holding it there with buttons, each numbered, so that the movements of the fish may be traced when it is caught, or found dead, five or six hundred miles up the river some time in the autumn.

But men will never be able to explain how the salmon knows its river and its stream. "An inherited race memory," one scientist calls this knowledge, but that is only a phrase of words. What is memory within the mind of the salmon? What sense has he that we lack and cannot even imagine, that leads him home through this trackless journey and at last to his own remote trickle, where his ancestors have come to spawn every four years since time and life began? It all ends in mystery, and so the fishery experts admit. They love the fish not as a scientific problem but for themselves, for the integrity which makes them finish their job.

It was her fourth or fifth venture into the lottery of marriage—the film star wasn't sure which. So when the registrar's clerk began asking a few questions she got annoyed.

"Have you been married before?" he asked. "And, if so, to whom?" This was too much. In her most freezing manner the star demanded: "What is this—a memory test?"

NOSTRADAMUS AND HITLER

The Edmonton seer who says he accurately foretold the flight of Hess and who later predicted the bumping-off of Hitler and his pals on September 30 is wrong in one respect at least. The world did not discover the passing of "the man" by September 7, as promised.

This war has thrown up a record crop of soothsayers of all classes and kinds. If one examines the Saturday church pages in the newspapers in some large Canadian cities one might suspect that the Christian religion had been taken over by the fortune-tellers branch of the C.I.O. Numerous display advertisements vie with one another—all purporting to explain to a bewildered world what is about to happen. Strange and terrible as are the happenings in this day and age, the actual event is mild as compared with the fantastic imaginings of these ecclesiastical soothsayers.

Strangely enough, the most glaring whoppers and mistakes which can only be called colossal, do not even shake the popularity of these fortune-tellers. At the end of May the most popular Vancouver, B.C., prophet assured his large congregation that the Mediterranean would literally freeze over on June 12, and that the Aussies who were stewing on the Libyan Desert would presumably be able to skate across the Mediterranean and knock Italy out of the war by ice hockey strategy. There is no record of any falling off in the "church" attendance of this fortune-teller parson following the non-appearance of the ice.

GREY AND SHIPTON

In his recent momentous London speech Mr. King read a prophetic poem by Grey, the famous author of the "Elegy in a Country Churchyard," in which the gallant exploits of the Royal Air Force were predicted some centuries before men had learned to fly. This sort of prophecy, of course, is in a completely different category from that of the forecasters of specific events, like the famous English Mother Shipton, of the French doctor, Nostradamus.

The movies have recently been playing up this French physician who was born in 1503 and who published his 1,000 famous quatrains, or four-line jingles in 1555. They made a sensation almost as soon as published, and have had a recurring popularity ever since. Scribes have just published a new edition of Ward's "Oracles of Nostradamus," which was written in 1891. There is an appendix including many of the hitherto unexplained jingles which might conceivably bear on Hitler, and these times.

The superstitious, for instance, might make something out of this: "The Lion and the Cock shall be not well confederated, they shall help each other because of fear, only liberty and the Celts shall be cured."

Or this: "The armies shall fight in the air a long time, the tree shall have fallen in the midst of the city, vermin, mange, sword, fire, after the monarch of Italy shall have succumbed."

According to Nostradamus, the Russian armies not only have a good chance to hold out against Germany but might counter-attack and penetrate central Europe. Thus: Some think he also foresaw the United States race to build planes. Thus:

"In the country there shall be a long rain, and in Apulia a great drought. The Cock shall see the Eagle, his wing lid completed, by the Lion shall be put to extremity."

But those who think things look tough can read this: "Those in the isles a long time beset shall take vigor and force against their enemies. Those outside shall be stricken dead of hunger—in greater hunger than those inside shall ever be placed."

"If we are to believe the oracles," say the editors of the appendix, "there will be a quick end of the present domination of the dictators, and there will be a resurgence of oppressed peoples under some leader not at the moment definitely identified."

Ward in his own comment shows the dangerous folly of trusting the predestined forces to decide human fates. He shows the last of the Stuart kings frantically poring over the jingles of Nostradamus to see whether or not he was going to get back his throne. The very fact that he thought some fortune-teller could decide that was the best proof—if not that he would not get it—certainly that he did not deserve to be restored.

RURAL TEACHERS' FLIGHT

Rural Teacher in Toronto Star

Allow me to say a word for the poor country teacher. Right now it seems to be comparatively easy to secure a country job. The reasons are quite evident. Few teachers will take a rural position if anything else is available.

Rural teachers as a whole have been getting a raw deal. Apart from the salary question, which is serious enough, there seem to be many disadvantages in teaching in a rural school. The changes in the course of study have not benefited them to any appreciable extent. On the contrary, some of them seem to be completely at sea as to what is expected of them. The older teachers are, I believe, sticking to the old course as far as they can.

I believe that the course for rural schools should be distinctly different from the urban course, especially as regards science, yes, and art, music and some of the other studies. Possibly this will be straightened out in time. At present it seems impossible for many of the rural schools to buy the necessary books on science and social studies, and in fact on any of the subjects.

An enterprising teacher can, of course, overcome many of these difficulties. But where are you going to find these teachers at the present time when there is so little incentive to qualify for a teacher?

I venture to say that, in at least 90 per cent of the cases, the reason country teachers leave their jobs is the boarding house.

There seems to be petty dictators on almost every rural school board. These dictate the company the teacher should keep, the hours she should keep, the place she should board, and many other things that I believe the urban teacher is exempt from.

A CITY GROWS UP

From Chicago Daily News

Hereafter it will be a misdemeanor punishable by fine and imprisonment for any Angelino to exercise the heaven-born right of the true American to "go down to the depot to see the train come in." From now on, that will be "loitering" and from now on the "depot" will be the "station," in Los Angeles. Wherever they call it station instead of depot, folks may still be folks, but they are no longer folksy.

ENTIRELY FALSE

From Vancouver Sun

The reported loss of many false teeth in the bombing of London (people leave them in a glass of water and forget them when the bombs fall) has prompted the studios Manchester Guardian to make a research into history.

It finds that false teeth, until the late 18th century, were mounted on frames of wood or hippopotamus ivory, kept very precariously in position by spiral springs pressing on the jaws.

If the Guardian investigator would step into the Old South Church in Boston, he would find the original of a letter written by George Washington to his dentist, asking him to pare down the frame of his dentures because they were hurting his mouth—the Father of his Country having by this time dispensed with the wooden pegs which the Indians showed him how to thrust into his teeth sockets in the wilderness of his youth.

But the Guardian has an equally interesting exhibit, the advertisement of a dentist who, in 1750, offered for sale at the High Wycombe Hiring Fair, dentures "set in so firm as to eat with" and which "are not to be taken out at night, as is by some falsely suggested, but may be worn years together."

And if all this seems rather inconsequential at a time like this, reflect that without our present eating and living habits we may all be toothless pretty soon.

THE GENTLE HUNS

From "Berlin Diary," by William L. Shirer

A word about something the Germans will shoot me for if the Gestapo or the military intelligence ever find these notes. I have been shocked at the way the German army in Belgium and France has been abusing the Red Cross sign.

The other day when we were within 40 miles of Paris, we stopped at a big army gasoline dump to refuel our cars. Forty or 50 army oil trucks were drawn up under the trees of an orchard. Several of them were plastered with huge Red Cross signs. Many of the ordinary trucks with canvas tops which were being used to carry drums of oil had red crosses on their sides and roof, and indeed looked like Red Cross ambulances.

A German officer apparently noticed me taking in their shameless misuse of the Red Cross sign. He hurriedly bundled us into our cars and got us off.

NEWS COMES TO GERMANS

From New York Herald-Tribune

Trains carrying the wounded now roll into Germany from the Russian front. Berlin apartment houses have been commandeered for temporary hospitals, say the reports. Germans are asked to call doctors only for grave illness—doctors are needed for the wounded. Such news as this would cause sorrow and dismay to any people. To the German people it must bring sorrow the more intolerable because for a time they had believed it could not happen—again.

WHEAT CARRYOVER

From Edmonton Journal

The wheat carryover into the new market year, which began on August 1, is smaller than was expected from the forecast made by the Minister of Trade and Commerce two weeks ago. He said that it was likely to be "just under" 500,000,000 bushels and the Bureau of Statistics puts it now at 480,083,691. This is about 180,000,000 greater than ever before but 95,000,000 less than was anticipated as recently as March. In the past five months there has been a marked increase in export sales.

Of Course You Can Dye Your Own Hair

It's no trick at all for any man or woman to get rid of their grey hair right in their home, and get a professional-looking job, too. You can now prepare yourself a grey hair preparation that takes out the risk, and is being used successfully by thousands to hide all traces of greying locks.

Get from your druggist one ounce bay rum, one-fourth ounce glycerine, one box Orlex Compound. Mix these in half pint of water, or have your druggist prepare it for you at small cost. This gives you a big bottle of one of the best grey hair preparations you can use. Simply combing this preparation into your hair several times a week soon imparts a rich, natural-looking color to grey, faded, streaked hair. That's all there is to it. It's easy, simple and safe. Best of all, for only a few cents a week you can maintain this shade. Orlex, being colorless, does not stain the scalp; will not rub off or wash out; does not affect permanents; is not sticky or greasy and leaves the hair soft and glossy. Use the simple, economical Orlex recipe today and see how easy it is to eliminate all trace of grey hair, and look years younger. (Adv.)

Wardens Seek Rule On Compensation

Does workmen's compensation cover employees when performing A.R.P. duties at their place of employment, is one of the questions raised by members of the National Defence Employees' Association of Esquimalt.

Many members are of the opinion that civil service workers in the Naval Dockyard would not receive compensation if injured in A.R.P. work because it was outside the scope of their regular duties. This, they thought, was unfair because it was work they were required to do in the dockyard.

R. W. Mayhew, M.P., at a meeting of the association, expressed the opinion the men were eligible for compensation if injured. He based his presumption on the fact that the men were required to do fire protection work at the place of their employment, working under orders of superiors. Any man doing any work under orders of a superior official at his place of employment was entitled to compensation, was the opinion of the Victoria member.

EDMONTON (CP)—Hon. W. M. Martin, rentals administrator for Canada, declared in a statement issued here after he had conferred with groups requesting or opposing a federal rent-control board in this city that "Edmonton's rental situation is becoming worse and early action is necessary. The administrator said some rents here "border on profiteering" and that "exorbitant" rents are being asked particularly for rooms. Asked by newsmen if he had decided to instal a rentals committee in Edmonton, Mr. Justice Martin replied: "It is under consideration." ## Married in Nave of Westminster Abbey

LONDON (CP)—First wedding in the nave of Westminster Abbey since the Reformation took place after bomb damage made it necessary to revive an old ecclesiastical custom when Kathleen Carnegie, daughter of a former sub-dean at the Abbey, married Capt. Raymond Gibbs. Until the custom was abolished, an altar was placed before the organ screen in the nave because the congregation were not allowed to mingle with the abbey monks at the high altar. As a result of a Nazi raid all services now are conducted before a temporary altar in the nave.

Pageantry of an abbey wedding remained. The choir in scarlet cassocks and white surplices stood on each side of the Unknown Warrior's tomb waiting for the bride. At the Great West Door were the robed clergy, headed by the Bishop of St. Albans and the Dean of Westminster.

Victoria Auxiliary to the Canadian Forestry Corps (overseas branch) will meet at 2.30 in the Y.W.C.A., September 19, instead of September 12, postponement due to Fall Fair week.

Lovely full-length Canadian Mink Coat, priced $1,800, reduced to $1,250! A wonderful value. Foster's Fur Store, 753 Yates Street.

Weddings

FERGUSON—CATTERALL

The double ring ceremony was used at the marriage of two Victorians in Toronto on Friday, August 29, at 2.30 p.m., at the Church of the Transfiguration, Manor Road E., when Laura, younger daughter of Mrs. Catterall, 872 Gorge Road West, Victoria, and the late Mr. Harry Catterall, became the bride of Mr. Robert D. Ferguson, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Ferguson, 1418 Fernwood Road, Victoria. Rev. Robert S. Boyd officiated against a background of white gladioli and greenery.

Given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Mr. Alex Watson of Port Huron, Mich., the bride wore an afternoon frock of turquoise blue crepe, cut on princess lines, with an off-the-face model hat made entirely of tiny burgundy feathers, her shoes and gloves being in the burgundy tone. She wore a corsage bouquet of rubrum lilies and white swainsona.

Mrs. Alex Watson was her sister's matron of honor, wearing a two-piece ensemble of fine woolen in delphinium blue, with a hat of Florida straw in natural tone, navy accessories and a corsage bouquet of Ophelia roses.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Cragg, 28 St. Clement's Avenue, Toronto. Mrs. Catterall, mother of the bride, received the guests in an afternoon dress in Dubonnet shade, with hat en suite, and a corsage bouquet of Talisman roses. The reception rooms were gay with masses of gladioli in pastel tones and the wedding cake centred the bride's table.

After a honeymoon in Ottawa, Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson will make their home in Ottawa.

RENDLE—WILLIAMS
At a quiet ceremony last evening at the home of the officiating clergyman, Rev. John S. Patterson, Old Esquimalt Road, Beatrice May, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Mr. Richard Williams, brother of the bride, acted as groomsmen, and the groom's sister, Miss Kathleen Rendle, was the bride's only attendant. Lasenby, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lasenby of Buckinghamshire, England.

Both the bride and bridegroom were unattended. The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Clifford E. Griffin, wore a tailored navy blue suit and a blouse in soldier blue sheer, with hat and gloves in the same shade.

Brown, Whiteside Street, Saanich, to Douglas Darlington, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Clarke of 3232 Aldridge Street, Victoria. The church was decorated with autumn flowers. Miss Elsie Fryatt played the wedding music and accompanied Mrs. T. Floyd who sang "O Perfect Love" and "Through the Years" during the service.

The bride, given away by her father, wore a gown of white lace with long sleeves, square neckline and train, and a long embroidered veil attached to the head with red roses and heather tiana. She carried a shower bouquet of red roses, white carnations and heather. Miss Elsie Clarke, sister of the groom, and Miss Joan Brown, sister of the bride, were bridesmaids in gowns of flowered blue organdy, with full skirts and trimmed with lace in darker shade, and picture hats tied under the chin with French blue velvet ribbon and they carried shower bouquets of pink roses and carnations. Mrs. Feildie Politano, sister of the bride, matron of honor, wore a similar gown in pale yellow, a brown hat with yellow roses and carried a Colonial bouquet of roses, snapdragon and carnations. Dorinda and Barbara Floyd as flower girls, in long frocks of yellow and blue organdy, respectively, carried Colonial bouquets of yellow roses. Mr. Leslie Clarke, brother of the groom, was groomsmen, and Messrs. Feildie Politano and George Simms ushers.

After the ceremony, a reception was held in Hampton Hall, where the mother of the bride received in a black and white gown, with matching accessories, assisted by Mrs. A. B. Cross, sister of the groom, in pale blue crepe, both wearing corsages of roses and gardenias. The hall was decorated with fall flowers and the bride's table centred with a three-tier wedding cake.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Turner, Happy Valley, and Miss Nancy Brown, aunt of the bride, from Lowestoft, England.

For the honeymoon up-island, the bride left in a dressmaker suit of powder blue with matching accessories. Among the gifts were a silver rose-bowl and candlesticks from the bride's fellow-employees in the Economy Laundry, and an eight-day clock from the staff of the Modern Pharmacy, Ltd., where the groom is employed. ## Councilwomen Brand Cost Of Living as 'Outrageous'

"Outrageous" was the term applied by several members of the Local Council of Women at its meeting yesterday afternoon to the "unwarranted rise" in the cost of meat, wood and other necessities of life, the discussion culminating in the passing of a resolution asking the federal government to take immediate steps to halt mounting costs of these commodities, which have practically doubled in cost in the last six months, working much hardship on those whose salaries and wages are stationary and on little children and the aged poor.

The same discussion gave rise to a motion that the City Council be commended for its stand in urging the provincial government to extend cost of living bonuses to relief cases and old age pensioners.

7,181 POUNDS OF JAM

Mrs. P. Rayment reported that 7,181 pounds of jam had been made by the joint committee under Local Council and Red Cross auspices during the summer, this to be sent to bombed-out children in England. She noted that the jam kitchen was closed for the duration of the fair, but that it was hoped to bring the amount made up to 10,000 pounds before the fruit season ends. Reference was made to the making of apple butter, for which the committee is awaiting instructions from the federal Department of Home Economics. Mrs. Rayment also noted that all jam made had been tested and approved by the provincial Home Economics Department. She thanked all those who had assisted in making the jam.

Mrs. D. L. MacLaurin gave a report on the proposed women's forum, which will be known as the Women's Council Table, the first meeting to be held in the Central Junior High School on October 22.

HOSPITALITY FOR R.A.F.

Miss Ellen Hart of the University Women's Club hospitality committee wrote asking the co-operation of the members in extending home hospitality to the men of the forces here. Mrs. H. P. Hodges also supported the appeal, pointing out that while the various hostess clubs played a big part, yet many of the men yearned for a home-cooked meal and for home hospitality. Any one willing to help entertain any of the Royal Air Force boys, sailors or other members of the forces was asked to get in touch with Miss Ellen Hart, Laurel Lane, or Mrs. T. B. Inglis, So-mass Drive.

Mrs. J. L. Gates, convener of laws for women and children, was asked to look into the question of the suggested revival of the curfew law, which was repealed in 1923. Mrs. K. McAllister urged the various organizations to send in their petitions on the proposed housing organizations to her or to Mrs. H. S. Hurn without delay. The meeting also endorsed a resolution from the Kamloops council asking that the law requiring all purchasers of liquor to produce

RENEWED EFFORT
At the opening of the meeting, Mrs. A. E. Hopkins, the president, reminded the members of the second anniversary of Canada's entry into the war and urged them to rededicate themselves anew to the task of helping the Empire in its hour of need. At the close of her remarks the members sang the national anthem.

Mrs. Blair Reid and Mrs. William McManus appealed for volunteers to help in the war savings booths at the Hudson's Bay and Spencer's.

'Tag-along' Club of Debert Disbands

TRURO (CP)—Imbued with the spirit of Canada's pioneer women were the wives of the "Tag Along" Club here.

Now disbanded, the club was composed of 250 women who "tagged along" with their husbands, N.C.O.'s in Canada's Third Division, from as far west as the Pacific to Truro, nearest town to sprawling Debert military camp. After functioning for seven months, the club broke up when their husbands moved to England. Able to "tag" no further, they started the long trek home-wards.

First headed by Mrs. Ted Reid of Victoria, and later by another Victoria woman, Mrs. C. Shiedel, the club executive included Mrs. Edward K. (Bud) Pangman, Victoria, vice-president; Mrs. Brakes, New Westminster, B.C., social secretary; Mrs. S. N. Berthier, Winnipeg, secretary; Mrs. N. J. Garrison, Winnipeg, treasurer.

Not content to let their husbands do all the war work, those women raised money for the Queen's Canadian Fund, knit for the Red Cross, and men of the third division, and organized concerts to entertain the troops.

As a farewell gesture they turned over the remaining $30 in their treasury to the Spitfire Fund in Ottawa.

At the monthly dinner meeting of the Victoria Dental Assistants' Association Monday night in the Y.W.C.A., two new members were welcomed, Mrs. W. Saunders and Miss Pat Taylor, R.N. Plans were made for the bridge to be held November 21 in aid of the Queen Alexandra Solarium.

Local Artists Show Excellent Work

Prince Robert House will benefit by the exhibition of water-colors and oils by two Victoria artists, A. M. D. Fairbairn, A.W.S., and Allen Edwards, which was opened there yesterday afternoon by Commander C. T. Beard, in the presence of a large gathering. The admission fees will be added to the furnishings and maintenance fund of Prince Robert House, on whose behalf Commander Beard thanked the artists.

The exhibit comprises about 70 water-colors and oils, about equally divided between the two artists. Mr. Fairbairn, who is a member of the Water-color Society, is well known as one of Canada's most proficient artists in this medium, and he is represented in a series of charming studies of landscapes and seascapes around Victoria and the adjacent countryside, Sooke being a favorite subject for his facile brush.

A competent draughtsman, he excels at composition, and some of his treatments are distinctly original. Among some of the most notable are "The Raft," full of softly-diffused light; "Complementaries," an impression of piles, boats, ropes, ladders and other wharf paraphernalia; "Fish-Trap, Sooke," is full of atmosphere, and is reminiscent of the Japanese in its treatment. Several Indian heads in charcoal show Mr. Fairbairn's versatility, his technique being as sound in this medium as with the brush.

Allen Edwards is equally at home in oils and water-colors, and his portraits, which occupy the whole of the end wall, are remarkable for their vitality. Especially striking is his portrait of Mrs. Andrew Mackenzie, his use of vivid color and vigorous execution being suggestive of Goya. "Silver, Grey and Black," another portrait of Mrs. Mackenzie, and portrait studies of Mrs. J. D. D. Campbell, Lieut. Larry Howard, Mrs. A. M. D. Fairbairn, and Miss Claire Collison also are notable for their vigor, freshness and composition.

Mr. Edwards is also showing a series of water-colors of scenes around Sooke and Metehosin, where the two artists have been busy throughout the summer, and the interest of this notable collection is enhanced by comparison between their treatment of similar subjects.

The exhibit will be open to the public daily from 11 a.m. till 10 p.m.

Princess Alexandra Lodge, Daughters of England, met in the S.O.E. Hall, Mrs. Elmesore presiding. Mrs. Warren, a recent bride, was presented with a little gift from the officers and members. One new member was initiated, the drill team putting on their work well. Quarterly meeting will be Thursday, September 18, at 8 p.m., members to bring refreshments.

Jubilee Juniors to Hold Doll Bazaar

Plans for an active winter were launched by members of the Jubilee Hospital Junior Women's Auxiliary yesterday afternoon at the opening meeting of the fall season at the Nurses' Home. The president, Mrs. W. B. Wilson, occupied the chair.

December 3 was chosen as the date of the doll and gift bazaar, to be held in the Nurses' Home, and Mrs. Norman Cook, convenor, asked that all dolls be turned in by members. Many beautifully-dressed dolls and layettes have already been completed. Mrs. Fletcher reported that 43 visits had been made to patients in the hospital, during the summer and four home visits. Three diet cases were maintained during the summer, Mrs. Russell Horton reported.

Show-case sales of knitting during the same period were $2.70. Mrs. W. Parker reported, and asked for more members on the knitting committee, the next meeting of which will take place September 16 at her home, 3007 Foul Bay Road.

An appeal for more current pictorial magazines was made by Mrs. C. S. Gonnason to distribute to convalescent patients. A room on the main floor of the hospital has been secured to store magazines and contributors are asked to leave them there as soon as possible. All work done by the vocational committee must be in by the end of September, reported Mrs. R. Newell.

The financial report, read by Mrs. Andrew Wright, treasurer, showed a favorable bank balance. Mrs. D. M. Martin was introduced as a new member by Mrs. Alan Butchart, secretary. Mrs. E. Goodall was appointed convenor of the bandaging committee to succeed Mrs. Jack Gray, and reported the completion of 7,788 bandages during the summer. Mrs. G. Terry was appointed treasurer of the Thrift Shop, to be assisted by Mrs. Alan Butchart. Also assisting in cleaning the Thrift Shop are Miss Peggy Bagley and Mrs. D. M. Martin, and workers are in charge of Miss Marcia Prior and Mrs. Jack Gray. Women's hats and underwear and men's shirts and babies' clothes are urgently needed to refill the stock.

Mrs. McBride in her social service report, stated there were 15 home visits, boarding-home care arranged for 19, transportation provided for 33 and two layettes given out during the summer.

Air Force Needing Women as Cooks

OTTAWA—To more than 700 of the girls who, as Canada celebrates Reconciliation Week, yearn for the uniform of the Canadian Women's Auxiliary Air Force, the R.C.A.F. is already saying: "Come into the kitchen." And it's more than likely that, ere they don civies again, maids and matrons will get a host of new wrinkles on cooking. For the menu as they are tough on Canada's airmen are as hard on the Hun; and pecking a tidbit from the chafing dish is not their idea of eating.

Food must be plentiful and top-notch, says Canada's government to all the fighting services. Kitchen kings—and queens—can't be merely experienced. They must be good. Take the Air Force. When the supply of worth-while cooks dried up early in the war, the R.C.A.F. created its own cooking school at Guelph, Ontario, with offshoots at St. Thomas.

Marvellous values in Fur Coats at Foster's! August Sale prices extended for a few more days only!

Trenton and Camp Borden. In all, 762 cooks have been trained; from Guelph alone, 344 who won the blue ribbon have gone out to tickle palates in messes from coast to coast. But 1,421 more are needed right now and half of them will come from the C.W.A.A.F.

Ten main subjects are in the six-week course, and the curriculum is not limited to "take anything, put in pot, put pot on stove." Baking, for example, covers everything from pies to popovers. But baking also comprises ability to judge and score bakers' bread, for bread is one item bought outside and the quality must be there. Food preparation ranges over separate study of meat, fowl and dairy products. Kitchen hygiene and sanitation are very important. Food storage—fruits and vegetables especially—entomology, nutrition, horticulture, food selection are other items—and pass marks hang high.

Quality and flavor must both be in when the food goes on the table. And one thing many women and girls may not realize is that they cook for officers and noncommissioned officers as well as for the ranks. For all, the basic menu is the same; officers and N.C.O.'s pay for any extras.

From air marshal to grease monkey, gentlemen of the Air Force eat—and heartily. In one day, about 1,000 men will dispose of this ration list: 750 lbs. meat, 64 lbs. fish, 718 lbs. potatoes, 350 lbs. fresh vegetables, 310 lbs. bread, 324 lbs. vegetable, 108 lbs. apples, 109 lbs. flour, 141 lbs. evaporated milk, 89 lbs. canned tomatoes, 44 dozen eggs, with, of course, trimmings.

Health Fitness Ever Dependent On What You Eat

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX
The homemaker's problem is to keep the men, women and children of her household adequately fed on an economical budget.

The average man is not so "sot" in his old-fashioned ways of eating that he cannot be taught to enjoy food planned on modern nutritional principles. Just watch men in lunchrooms and restaurants when they order their food. Ask college athletes what they want to eat. You'll find large numbers of men proving they are aware of the part scientific diet plays.

Every cent of the family food dollar must be efficiently used. The housewife must learn how to spend her money; not just how to save it. She must learn what nutrients are needed in her daily menus and supply them in an appetizing way.

When every cent of every food dollar goes to producing better health and better growth, then she can call herself an efficient modern manager.

She will be doing her patriotic job of helping to keep the Canadian standard of health and stamina equal to the demands of these strenuous times.

By PETE SALLAWAY

BUNCH of the boys were gathered between races at the Willows track Saturday when Dr. W. J. McKeon, presiding steward, and Earle Lewis, clerk of the scales and associate steward, started to reminisce. "You know, fellows, I have been coming over to Victoria for the races since 1908," declared Lewis. "Well, so have I," replied "Doc." "And further, during that time I have never missed a day's racing either in Vancouver or Victoria, except for one season when meetings at the two towns overlapped for three or four days."

Lewis and McKeon were both in Victoria during that still-talked-about 60-day meet back in 1909. They told us about the carload of crack horses shipped up to the local strip from the old Santa Anita track in California, and of the outstanding jockeys and trainers that were here for the historic meeting. "George Archibald who rode at that meeting, later went to England and was contract rider for the Czar of Russia," McKeon said.

In possession of McKeon are the form charts for that 1909 meeting while Lewis declared he also has filed away all the charts for the meetings from away back. Lewis and McKeon have been associated with horses and racetracks for so long they hate to remember. "Don't get us talking too far back or people will begin to think we are getting old," the pair chorled.

McKeon was first associated with the races through his father owning racing horses. After graduating from agricultural college as a veterinary surgeon "Doc" started practicing. He continued with the association in various capacities up until 1930 when he took over his present position of presiding steward. Back in 1909 Lewis was associated with his father in racing a stable of horses and one time they had 18 horses in their string. Father and son also operated at book at the Willows. All the betting in those days was with the hand books, pari-mutuel betting unheard of.

Present-day racing fans may not know it but the surface of the old half-mile Willows track now adorns the Chinese vegetable gardens at the north end of the present track. "The old Willows half-mile was one of the fastest and safest tracks in Canada," McKeon said. "At that time the judge's stand was located in the centre of the infield and was as big as a bandstand. And every time some owners won a race they would show up at the stand with a bottle of—well, I guess you better not print that."

After chatting to McKeon and Lewis for while one realizes they are a pair that really know the horse racing game. One should really spend some time with them to draw forth a lot of the color and human interest stories that have passed before their eyes during such a long association with the "Sport of Kings."

Back again at the Willows this year is Jack Short, the lad who tells the fans all about it over the public address system. A native son of Victoria Jack became associated with the racing game a few years back and has now become one of the most popular members of the track staff. He does a grand job of calling and has established himself a valued and necessary part of British Columbia races.

Beard Thrills Fans

Jockey W. Beard, a newcomer to the local track, put on a demonstration of hard riding at the Willows yesterday and had the fans shouting themselves hoarse in two spectacular grandstand finishes.

Aboard the well-favored Royal Hero in the third, Beard had to stage a recovery when the gelding bore out coming into the home stretch. He had set the pace from the break and had two lengths to the good as they turned for home. His speed carried him out to the centre of the track, and Fay Park, which had been following the pace, momentarily wrested away the lead. Beard straightened out his mount, applied the whip, and in a driving finish managed to score a half-length victory.

Beard's mount in the opener, Naperton, nicked Guaranty in a photo finish after a head-and-head drive for the last quarter of a mile. This was the most dramatic stretch run of the day. Godley, aboard Guaranty, set the early pace, and he dogged it out with the winner right to the wire. It was a close nose separating the pair.

The photo was called into play in two other events to separate the place horses, Lasswade got the call for third over Belle Park in the third race, and Thirsk was given the nod for second over Mint Boy in the seventh.

IMPRESSIVE WIN
J. T. Wilson's Cisco Kid scored an impressive win over the mile route in the seventh. He had to take back from tight quarters, passing the stand the first time around, then went out after the pace-making Mint Boy and Golden Belt, having to travel the overland route on two turns, but he was full of run, and finished with four lengths to the good.

The veteran Nanaimo-bred mare, Maizie B., demonstrated that she still has the turn of speed that has made her a popular favorite here in recent years, when she topped the second from Shasta Chub. The mare combined with Royal Hero to make up a daily double worth $41.90 for $2.

There were two quinella pools during the day. Clear Title, a 7 to 1 shot, combined with the even-money favorite, Zelpha Lad, to register $10.05 in the fifth. Cisco Kid and Thirsk were worth $22.15 in the seventh.

Eagles Game Up In Ball Series

With Russ Richardson hurling three-hit ball for eight innings, the Eagles turned back Pitzer and Nex 3 to 1 last night to take a one-game lead in the city championship baseball playoffs. Clubs will meet again Wednesday night and a win for the lodgemen will give them the title.

After allowing his opponents a single run in the first inning, Richardson hurled shutout ball until the finish. He struck out six. Ritchie Nicol was on the mound for Pitzer and Nex, giving up six hits and striking out three. Eagles got to him for a pair of runs in the first frame and one more in the second to end the scoring for the night.

On the offensive side of the picture, Jack Stratton and Reg Patterson provided the blows to give the Eagles their runs.

Short score follows:

Eagles	R. H. E.
Pitzer and Nex	3 6 0
Batteries	Richardson and Bridgewood; Nicol and Cosier.

Victoria United In League Again

VANCOUVER (CP)—Victoria United will again be a contender in the Pacific Coast Soccer League in the 1941-42 season, but Nanaimo will drop out, it was disclosed at a week-end meeting of the league here, when October 4 was set as the opening date for the new season.

Officials expressed hope for an application from Kerrisdale, the Vancouver team which won the Vancouver and District League last year, thus making a six-team circuit in the coast league.

Besides Victoria, North Shore United, Radials, St. Andrews and St. Saviour will again see action. It was announced that the league made a profit of $250 last year.

Betty Jameson in Four-way Lead Tie

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP)—San Antonio's Betty Jameson launched her campaign for her third consecutive women's United States golf championship by posting a 76 that gave her a quarter share of the medalist honors in yesterday's qualifying play.

Three serious eastern contenders, Grace Amory of Locust Valley, N.Y.; Jean Bauer, the Rhode Island titlist; and Alice Belanger of Beverly, Mass., kept pace with the defending champion by matching her three-over-par round, thereby providing the tournament with its second four-way tie in its 47-year history.

Canada's only competitor in the tournament, Grace Sears of Toronto, qualified with an 87, made up of two rounds of 43 and 44.

Adanacs Take Lead

VANCOUVER (CP)—New Westminster Adanacs today had a one-game lead in their Inter-city Lacrosse League semifinal series with Vancouver Burrards, but their narrow 19 to 7 victory last night gave promise that the sight for a final slot against Richmond Farmers will be a tough one.

All-Stars Defeat Spokane Indians

SPOKANE (AP)—Three-hit hurling by Roy Helser, lefthander from Salem, last night stopped the Western International League pennant winning Spokane Indians could to give the league all-stars a 6 to 1 victory in the first of their three-in-five baseball series.

Reaches England

A cable was received Sunday by his mother from Lieut. Victor Moore, stating he was well and safe in England. Lieut. Moore was born at Esquimalt in 1918 and is the youngest son of Lieut. Col. and Mrs. F. W. L. Moore, 3249 Quadra Street. He was educated at Cloverdale Public School, Mount View High School and Victoria College, graduating from University of British Columbia in 1940. He took the officers' training course while at U.B.C. For two years before the war he served as a private in the 2nd Battalion, Canadian Scottish Regiment. He received his commission after graduating and joined the 1st Battalion, Canadian Scottish.

"During the mating season," says a writer in Modern Game Breeding, "bighorn sheep rams often face each other, back up as much as 100 feet, and then, running at the rate of about 20 miles an hour, crash into each other head on!"

Boxing War to Finish
U.B.A. After Jacobs
WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP)—The war-torn deliberations of the National Boxing Association's 23rd annual convention here yesterday, but the main picture before the N.B.A. for the coming year was sketched by speakers over the fight on Mike Jacobs and his control of boxing in New York.

Brooklyn Finally Favored

Even the bookmakers finally have discovered Brooklyn is still in the National League. For the first time since the pennant pot started to sizzle, the West 49th Street betting booths in Knickerbocker's village have put the Brooklynins up as favorites to hang on to their three-game lead through the last western whirl they start today, and go on to the championship.

Convinced at last that maybe "the burns" can finish in front of St. Louis Cardinals, the bookies not only took the favorite's spot away from the gas housers at last, but skyrocketed the Dodgers into the choice's chair at odds-on in the wagering.

On the latest prices, you have to lay $3.50 today to win $1 if you like Brooklyn. On the other hand, if you're still stringing along with St. Louis, you can get $2.50 for each $1 you put up.

Looking beyond the action for the next couple of days (the Cards tangle with the pathetic Phillies and the Brooklynins work on Chicago Cubs) you come up to the hot Dodger-Cardinal series Thursday, Friday and Saturday in St. Louis. If things Thursday are still as they are today, St. Louis must sweep that set in order to come back into the fight.

If they don't, the Cards can't look for any relief from the rest of the way. For still in front of them are six games with Chicago Cubs.

Now the Cubs are the National League's sixth-place team to most everyone but St. Louis. Billy Southworth's sluggers have just managed to break even in 16 games played to date with Jimmy Wilson's wallpapers.

The Yankees have the American League flag sewed up and as the western outfits in their loop move in, the only souables are whether Boston or Chicago can take the runner-up spot, with Cleveland trying to stall off Detroit for the rest of the first division honors.

Back of the bosses in the National League, Cincinnati and Pittsburgh are putting on a pretty fair show for third place.

COAST LEAGUE
The Coast League championship argument is returned to the ball clubs involved today, with thanks and best wishes from students their usual Sunday picnics.

Plans have been made to entertain cadets from Gordon Head

FUNERAL NOTICE

The funeral of the late Comrade
Isaac Godfrey Daft, 67th Battalion, will take place Wednesday, Sept.
10th, at 3.30 p.m., from McCall's
Funeral Parlors.Members of Britannia Branch, Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L., are requested to attend.R. KNIGHT, President.
A. H. ADAMS,
Secretary.Swim Pool Becomes Hall
For 1,000 P.E.O. DelegatesP.E.O.—mystical symbol of a great international sisterhood—
took on a new meaning, "Put 'em out," today when 1,000 delegates from many parts of Canada and the United States took over the Empress Hotel and turned it into a matriarchate for the next few days.For even the 300 husbands and 700 daughters, sisters and friends who accompanied this cavalcade to Victoria for the biennial convention of the P.E.O. Supreme Chapter have had to find accommodation elsewhere. Many of the B.L.L.'s, as husbands of P.E.O. members are called, are in residence at Mount St. Mary's, as well as hotels and auto courts throughout the city, while about 200 delegates and visitors are being accommodated on the Canadian Pacific steamer Princess Victoria, which is being used as a floating hotel moored in the harbor.More men went unnoticed in the crowd at the Empress today, and feminine voices echoed in a shrill cacophony as delegates
surged around information desks, sought fellow-delegates, exchanged gossip and reminiscence, told of adventures while getting here—some of them having been two weeks on the road—and generally prepared to settle down to three days of business, combined with entertainment and sight-seeing.

SEVEN IN A ROOM

Two or three beds have been assigned to a room, and the commercial sample rooms at the Empress have been pressed into service as dormitories, with some of them containing seven cots, to meet the unprecedented demandoccasioned by the biggest convention ever held here.The problem of meals is a big one, too. All of them will have their general meals at the hotel,
the main dining-room, ballroom,
tearoom and lower lounge, as well as the grillroom, being pressed into service, while for the banquet this evening an overflow will dine on the Princess Victoria and at the Crystal Garden.

5,000 BREAKFAST EGGS

Some idea of the enormity of the catering problems for such a multitude is revealed in the commissariat figures. For the entire 120 lambs, 800 chickens and 120 turkeys will be required.
Hens will have to lay overtime to meet the demand, for at one breakfast alone 5,000 eggs will be consumed, while the pastry
chef will need another 2,500 eggs for the custards, lemon whips, ices and other desserts. Orange juice by the tankful will be the order, 2,268 oranges being needed for one breakfast alone, as well as 500 cantaloupes and 800 grapefruit per breakfast sitting.

NINE EXTRA COOKS

Friday is fish day and 700 pounds of fish will supply the main course, with 150 pounds of fresh crabmeat and 75 pounds of fresh shrimps to make the cocktails. And to handle all this extra work nine extra cooks, 10 extra stir-fry maids, as well as a small army of additional waiters and waitresses have been added to the staff.While the delegates from the Canadian mainland arrived yesterday and this morning, the main body arrived this afternoon, the Princess Charlotte docking fromSeattle at 1.15, with about 1,000 aboard, while the Princess Victoria followed immediately after, carrying several hundred more delegates and visitors from the United States.

BANQUET AND RECEPTION

The formal opening took place at 4 in the Crystal Garden, which has been turned into an oasis of greenery and semitropical flowers for the occasion, with the pool drained to provide seating accommodation.Mayor Andrew McGavin tendered the city's greetings to the delegates and visitors.Tonight the formal banquet will be held at the Empress Hotel, when the supreme officers will head the roster of distinguished guests. Other notables here include Mrs. Mary Berry Johnson of Alameda, Ill., first president and senior past president of the Supreme Chapter; Mrs. Chas.
Sprague, wife of the Governor of Oregon; Mrs. Winona Reeves,
Chicago, editor of the P.E.O.
Record, the official organ, and past president of the Iowa chapter, and Mrs. Sadie Orr Dunbar, of Portland, a former president of the U.S. Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.After the dinner, the delegates and visitors will be tendered an official reception at the Parliament Buildings, when Premier Patullo and members of the cabinet will receive them in the executive chamber. The delegates will walk in procession from the hotel to the Parliament Buildings, accompanied by girl pipers and by the light of the illuminations on the Buildings, post office and in the Causeway.The Victoria Girls' Drill Team, assisted by the Victoria Boys' Band, will give a performance in the Sports Centre tomorrow night at 8.30, in connection with Citizens' Day at the fair, at the Willows grounds. The show will be open to the public.Four motorists were fined $10
each in Esquimalt Police Court yesterday for speeding. Two were fined $10 each for passing street cars about to discharge or take on passengers. One was fined $5 for failing to stop at a stop sign. Three were fined $2.50 each on parking charges.war, being transferred from here to Halifax. He will resume his legal practice in Victoria.Tribute Paid To Late JuristThe Court of Appeal opened its fall sittings in the Victoria Court House today with a personal tribute from Chief Justice M. A.
Macdonald to the memory of his predecessor, the late Hon. Archer Martin."Before we commence work it is fitting to pay tribute to the memory of a distinguished jurist who recently passed away; one who for nearly half a century was a familiar figure in this courtroom. I refer to the former Chief Justice Martin," the chief justice said."We live in a world of transition and must be reconciled to it.
We see change but not necessarily decay in its true sense around and about us. What appears to be so final and irrevocable is, I believe, a door opened on a wider and higher sphere of life."I am deeply sensible of the changes wrought by time. All the colleagues who were associated with me on this bench when I was appointed 17 years ago have passed on. All, like the late chief justice, exceeded the normal span of life."So much was properly said by members of the bench, the bar and the press on the occasion of his retirement from the bench of his great contribution in the administration of justice during a long, unique and memorable career that it would be a work of supererogation to repeat it.
We, therefore, confine ourselves to a personal tribute to his memory. After 'life's fitful fever,' and Shakespeare's phrase is appropriate to him because the former chief justice always lived at high tension, deeply concerned with contemporary thought on a vast variety of subjects, we may now say 'Requiescat in Pace,'
the chief justice concluded.

ECHOES SENTIMENTS

R. L. Maitland, K.C., on behalf of the bar, associated himself with the tribute paid by the chief justice and repeated his former statement that as long as law reports were read in the province, the judgments of the late retired chief justice would be a valuable guide.

COMEDIAN CHARLIE CHAPLIN and Paulette Goddard in "The Great Dictator," now showing at the York Theatre.

IN A TIGHT SPOT appears to be John Howard, featured star in "Tight Shoes," now showing at the Plaza Theatre.

GHOST TOWN thriller "The Parson of Panamint," filmed from the Peter B. Kyne story, is now being featured at the Dominion Theatre.

KYNE THRILLER AT DOMINION

Paramount strikes a new note in western entertainment with "The Parson of Panamint," Peter B. Kyne's stirring "ghost town" story which comes to life today at the Dominion Theatre's screen.

The thrilling outdoor melodrama, filled with gun-smoke and spectacle, portrays the life of a man who tried to build a model community on the western frontier.

The star players include Charlie Ruggles, Ellen Drew, Phillip Terry, Joseph Schildkraut, Porter Hall, Henry Kolker, Janet Beecher, Paul Hurst and many other familiar faces.

It's a thrilling yarn of action, suspense and romance.

The richest man in the world, and unwitting owner of the giant emporium.

Combining war m. human drama with its sparkling comedy, the story concerns the efforts of the wealthy tycoon to investigate conditions in his establishment by impersonating a shoe clerk. His association and reluctant friendship with the pretty saleslady, his gradual regeneration and his ultimate and uproarious activities when he actually helps carry the torch of battle against his own unjust management, make for delightful entertainment.

For the first time they have appeared together on the screen, Binnie Barnes and Mike Frankovich, who recently were married, are featured in "Tight Shoes," the Universal laugh hit now at the Plaza Theatre.

One of Frankovich's assignments for the Runyon film was to train Miss Barnes in prize-fighting and wrestle holds so that she could make a convincing performance in her free-for-all battle with John Howard and Brod Crawford.

The emotional, stirring drama depicted in "Four Sons," the 20th Century-Fox picture which is currently at the Rio Theatre, was acclaimed by the first night audience as an emotional masterpiece. The powerful picture features Don Ameche, Eugene Leonovich, Mary Beth Hughes and many others. Produced by Darryl F. Zanuck, "Four Sons" was directed by Archie Mayo. Harry Joe Brown was associate producer.

Fur Seal Revenue To Canada Good

OTTAWA (CP)—The Fisheries Department consulted its records today on the eve of another sale of fur seal skins and found that in 30 years the Pelagic Sealing Treaty of 1911 had paid the Dominion good revenues.

At a June fur auction, the Dominion sold part of its 1940 share of seal skins from the Pribilof Islands in the Bering Sea at an average price of $34, a substantial gain over values in previous years, officials said.

Canada's share in last year's kill was 9,789 skins, an increase of 800 over 1939, and continued good prices were anticipated. The Dominion sells the skins, after dressing and dyeing, from time to time during the year.

The treaty was made effective after hunters of various nations had slaughtered tens of thousands of animals annually as they returned to their ancestral home at the Pribilof Islands.

Killing of the Pribilofs is done by the United States, which is also in charge of conservation measures. Canada receives 15 per cent in number and value of the skins taken, while Japan gives the Dominion a 10 per cent share of the annual take of pelts from Japanese rookeries.

OFFICIALS LOOKING AFTER DELEGATES

The importance attached to the P.E.O. convention by the transportation companies is indicated by the number of railroad officials sent here to look after the travel comfort of the women delegates.

In charge of a special train which carried 180 from Chicago, is P. G. Holmes, district passenger agent, Great Northern Railway, of St. Paul, Minn., who is in the city today.

Also arriving from Portland was A. W. Gusey, general agent, passenger department, Great Northern Railway.

A. C. Stickley, general agent, passenger department, Northern Pacific Railway, Portland, and formerly general agent for the company in Victoria, is another U.S. railroad visitor to the city.

A. L. Ives, general agent, passenger department, Union Pacific, Seattle, also is in Victoria today in connection with the P.E.O. conv.

Whaling Aids War Effort

More B.C. Mammals Taken Point to Year's Record

Whaling operations on the British Columbia coast have been so successful this season that the men following this adventurous trade will make an important contribution to Canada's war effort this year.

The steam whalers operating off the Queen Charlotte Islands, comprising the fleet of the Consolidated Whaling Corporation, had caught 224 whales up to the end of July, compared with 196 taken at the same time last year and a total 1940 catch of 220 whales.

This season may establish a record, for the fleet will remain on the job probably for several weeks yet, at any rate until the coast weather breaks.

Officials of the Consolidated Whaling Corporation here do not expect the whalers to return to this port before the end of the month, and it may be later.

Whale oil is used overseas in the making of foodstuffs, and markets for the Canadian product are easily found if there are surplus supplies for export. For fine machinery, the whale provides top-quality oil, and bone meal and fertilizer are by-products.

Although modern whaling ships with steel hulls and powder-driven harpoons are a long way ahead of the open boats and hand-thrown harpoons of the past, whale hunting still has its thrills on the Pacific.

ment calls for a readjustment on September 1.

Meanwhile, fishing is continuing without interruption.

Port Authorities Meet in Seattle
VANCOUVER (CP)—Vancouver Port Manager, K. J. Burns, announced today that the Pacific Coast Association of Port Authorities will hold its annual meeting in Seattle, September 17, 18 and 19, and representatives will attend from all ports on the west coast. Mr. Burns, elected president of the association last year, will represent Vancouver at the meeting.

Canadian Troops In Tank Display
SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND (CP)—Co-operation between infantry and tanks and the part played by the Royal Engineers in tank operations were demonstrated for senior Canadian and British military and naval officers in a realistic display in which one troop from the Canadian Tank Brigade took part.

While officers watched from trenches a safe distance from exploding dynamite and live ammunition, soldiers and tanks crossed mined fields in mimic attack exercises.

Brig. F. F. Worthington, commander of the Canadian Army Tank Brigade, was among the spectators, following his men with field glasses as they crossed the rough heath in their giant Churchill tanks.

In the first part of the exercise, infantrymen from a British regiment advanced over an area guarded by tank traps, followed at some distance by the tanks. In the second part the tanks preceded the infantry.

BROWN'S ENCOUNTER

This year one whaler, the Brown, was forced to suspend operations for repairs after the ship was struck by a whale. With an infuriated monster of 80 tons thrashing about in the water, anything it strikes is likely to be damaged.

From the 220 whales taken in 1940 there came 361,620 gallons of oil, 181 tons of bone meal and 434 tons of fertilizer, with a total value of $137,624.

Sperm whales, ranging from 38 to 45 feet long—and whalers say every foot in length represents a ton in weight—are in the majority so far this year, numbering 153. Finbacks taken numbered 46, humpbacks 24 and sulphur one. The finbacks are the largest, from 63 to 68 feet as reported in returns.

With increasing interest in the vitamin content of foods, officials say they expect a continuing strong market for whale livers, which are high in vitamin A content.

"Our exports of whale products to the United States bring in needed exchange and increased production in Canadian waters means that we can keep at home money which might have to be spent for imported products," a government official said. "We find uses for the blubber and the skin."

"As for whalebone, the strong market for this product as an essential part of the old style corset has weakened, but we suspect that the whale still makes his contribution to fashionable curves."

Engineers explained the various demonstrations over a loud speaker.

Various secret devices for detecting mines and clearing a path through mine fields were described, with the engineers going through the actual process they would use in the field.

On one occasion after a path had been dynamited through a trap, "enemy" sappers laid a second charge across the path in a special device contrived by Lieut.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, Canadian Corps commander.

"In practice this charge would be exploded at the moment the tanks are crossing the trap," the announcer said, "but in the interests of our Canadian friends in the tanks we'll set it off before they get there."

The blast which followed dug a tremendous trench and would have meant the end of any tanks and men crossing at the time.

New York Stocks

NEW YORK (AP)—Heavy dealings in commodities and low-priced stocks stole the limelight in Tuesday's financial markets. Closing quotations were a trifle uneven in most departments.

Large blocks of issues selling under $10 a share helped put the day's volume at around 800,000 shares, one of the largest since late July.

Stocks posting new highs for the year included Hiram Walker, International Nickel, U.S. Rubber and Pan-American Airways.

Eastman Kodak got up 3 points on a few sales. Modest support was accorded Goodrich, Goodyear, Standard Oil (N.J.), American Airlines, Anaconda and International Harvester.

On the losing side were U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Santa Fe, N.Y. Central, Western Union, Texas Corp., Douglas Aircraft, Boeing, United Aircraft, Lockheed, Consolidated Aircraft, U.S. Gypsum and Kennecott.

Canadian stocks registered gains up to and over a point in active trade. Hiram Walker led the advance, jumping 1 1/2 points, and Canadian Pacific and McIntyre each gained 1/2 and Dome 4. Distillers Secagrams was the only loser, off 1/4. In the bond market Canada 4's were unquoted.

Steamship at New High

MONTREAL (CP)—Softness in Dominion Coal preferred and Dosco B infected other industrial stocks on the stock exchange today and the group was pointed downward for most of the session. In other departments the tone was generally firmer.

Dominion Coal preferred slipped two points after directors of the company announced deferment of payment on the next dividend due to labor trouble.

Canada Steamship issues were pointed to new high ground in carriers but C.P.R. turned back in rails. With the exception of Montreal Power, which slipped, utilities did better, Shawinigan, Quebec Power and B.C. Power A showing a profit.
